OLE MISS

"No greater treasure has man on earth than memories, and no sweeter memories exist for one than those centered around his or her college days, and so it has been the aim and purpose of this staff to cater and to instill throughout the general theme of this book the spirits and atmospheres of life at the university, garbed in the fashion of a period so dear to us all in order that these days may be recalled to mind at will by only a glance within its pages."

Celebrating 150 years

Ole Miss means something truly remarkable to all who come to know her. Research for this yearbook has shown that for 150 years her students have tried to describe this undefinable adoration which Ole Miss inspires.

It would be impossible to include the words of every writer who has painstakingly tried to capture the heart of Ole Miss. The poetry, prose, and photographs included in the opening of this book represent the consistency of these descriptions throughout the years.

The spirit of Ole Miss is not reflected merely in stately buildings and green landscapes. It can be seen in the faces of those who have loved her throughout the years, and those who love her today.

Her legacy has been steadfastly maintained over the course of 150 years. The responsibility of keeping this tradition, which is The University of Mississippi, alive lies in the hands of the present.

Student Life

150th ANNIVERSARY

The name "Ole Miss" is a statement within itself. Ole Miss is an individual way of life lived by every person who steps foot on the Oxford campus. The Ole Miss experience might consist of sunny days in the Grove during lazy weekdays or exciting football afternoons. For many it includes meeting new friends and overcoming those freshman fears or a nostalgic glance towards the Lyceum while walking to class.

Ole Miss describes the heart of The University of Mississippi. One television commercial states, "Ole Miss. Your Home. Your Future. Your Life." Ole Miss is a home away from home to complete the college experience. Not only does the university cater to the needs of the students, but Oxford treats the students as her own. The collegiate happenings at this university mold each student's life for the future and for the generations to come.

Surely, our lives will never be the same after our time together at Ole Miss. Life here is a mosaic of the circumstances and people encountered daily. This is the adventure of a student's life...this is Ole Miss.

Who we are

Statistics reveal the 'average' Ole Miss student

Ole Miss students come from all across the state, country and world to study here.

The campus is composed of about 10,500 undergraduate, graduate and law students.

About 20 percent of the undergraduate population was from out-of-state.

Mississippi residents accounted for the other 80 percent of students. Besides Lafayette County, a large number of the students came from larger cities. Hinds, Madison and Rankin counties, composing the Jackson area, accounted for about 1000 Ole Miss students.

Other counties with large numbers of residents attending Ole Miss were Lee (316 students), DeSoto (275 students), Panola (250 students) and Harrison (213 students).

Students also come from around the globe.

There were approximately 500 international students enrolled at Ole Miss. The top three countries with international student enrollment were India, with 93, People's Republic of China followed with 64, and 61 students came from Malaysia.

UMstudents include National Merit Scholars

Ole Miss was ranked 58th in the country (1996-97) among colleges and universities for the number of freshman National Merit Scholars attending. With 34 freshman scholars, the University outranked the universities of Virginia and Notre Dame, and Georgetown.

A $5.4 million gift in 1996 from Netscape President and CEO James Barksdale and his wife, Sally McDonnell Barksdale, enabled the University to create the McDonnell-Barksdale College, which allows high-ability students to enjoy superior educational activities.

Emotion and economy merged as noted figures gathered for the second taping of the PBS show "Firing Line" at The Univer-sity of Missis-sippi on Tues-day, October 14.

Leading the affirmative was William F. Buckley, Jr., host of "Firing Line," and editor at large of The National Review. His team members were Nobel Prize winner Henry Kissinger and Ole Miss Alumni Senator Trent Lott and James Barksdale.

The opposing team captain was Gary Bauer, president of the Family Research Council. Debating for the negative were Jerry Brown, former California governor and president of We The People; Arianna Huffington, syndicated columnist and chair of the Center for Effective Compassion; and Arkansas U.S. Senator Tim Hutchinson. Michael Kinsley, editor of the online magazine Slate, moderated the event.

Campus central

Union serves as hub of campus life

by clint smith& sarah catherine dill

Nowhere else in Oxford could one find chicken, gold rings, stamps and magazines at one place.

The Ole Miss Student Union is the center of campus life, whether students are eating, studying, watching TV or watching people, attending a meeting, checking mail or getting cash.

Throughout the year, different clubs and organizations set up booths in the lobby to display their wares and exhibits, including one featuring Thomas Jefferson.

The Ole Miss Central Ticket, Greek Life and Dean of Students offices are all located within the building for students' easy access.

The Food Court features homestyle cooking, plus fast-food options.

The Ole Miss Bookstore and the U.S. Post Office are also included at the one-stop shop.

Eat chicken, pizza and blueberry muffins at the same time. Buy stamps, get cash, grab a newspaper and buy a picture frame.

The three R's redefined

University undertakes renovating, remodeling, and restoring projects

More than $66 million in state and private money was planned for renovation and construction projects for the Oxford Ole Miss campus. The Old Gym is getting a $7 million facelift and is becoming the Student Services Building, a one-stop shop for students.

When that is completed, occupants of the Lyceum will move in move into that building. The Lyceum is expected to be restored by 2000. The Schools of Business and Accountancy moved into their new home, Holman Hall in the fall while Conner Hall was being gutted and reconstructed.

Ventress Hall be-came the home of the College o Liberal Arts i January after a $ million renovation.

Why should Ole Miss students volunteer ther time and effort toward community service projects and philanthropy organizations? The answer to the question is relatively simple.

Volunteering for a good cause is an easy way to make you feel good about yourself. Completing a complicated project or receiving an overwhelming thank you from an appreciative soul is also a major driving force behind the participation in these activities. Many campus organizations take on the task of supporting local and national charities. Most all sororities and fraternities use their chapters to raise monty to support philanthropies.

Greek organizations support a variety of groups, from the one's support of Sight Conservation, to others' support of the blind and the American Cancer Society. Greek organizations are not the only one's helping out. Various student organizations put in a great deal of time and effort to support the Oxford community and surrounding community.

Members of the Baptist student Union volunteer their time to help international students and less fortunate children in any way they can. The list of philanthropies and charities Ole Miss' student organizations support is almost innumerable. Giving time and effort to so many worthwhile causes is a great way to give something back to a community that has given us as students so much.

Living the high-rise life

Students make dorms their homes away from home

Approximately 20 percent of Ole Miss students live on campus. Freshmen are required to live on campus and have to buy a meal plan.

Freshman women reside in Brown, Stewart and and Martin Halls. Freshman men live in Deaton, Garland-Hedleston-Mayes (GHM), Kinard and Stockard Halls.

Upperclassmen women live in Crosby, Guess, Hefley, Falkner, and Miller halls. Upperclassmen men live in Howry, Kinard and Kincannon.

It's hip to be square

Oxford's downtown square serves as people magnet

The downtown Oxford square is home to an eclectic variety of shops, restaurants, and boutiques.

The center of the square contains the home of Lafayette County government.

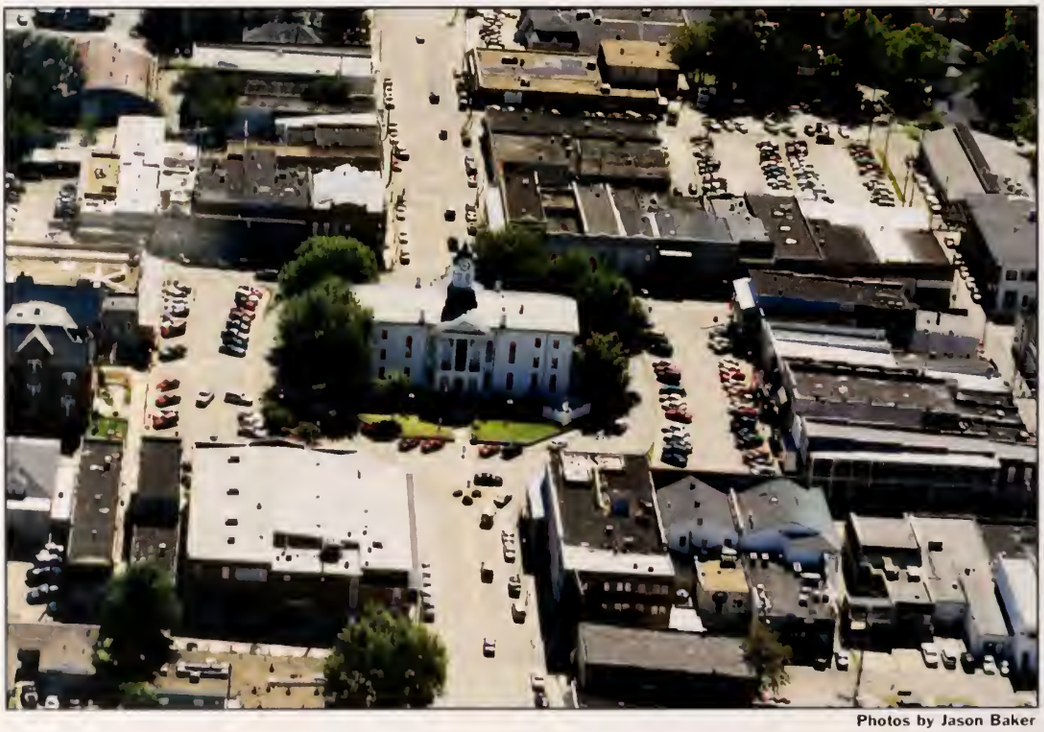

Activities throughout the year revolve around the Square, including the Double Decker Arts Festival, the Christmas and Homecoming parades, literary events and grand openings.

Square Books hosts state, regional and national authors on a regular basis. The store recently held book signings by Richard Ford, auth-or of Independence Day, author and actor Ethan Hawke, author of The Hottest State and Charles Frazier, author of Cold Mountain.

Homecoming '97 was bigger and better than ever.

On Monday of Homecoming week students had the chance to make 'fun flicks,' and get hypnotized. On Tuesday night, the Miss Ole Mister pageant, kept the education auditorium filled with laughter. Wednesday was cheap movie day at Ciné Four. And in front of the Union students had the chance to participate in sumo wrestling, hang upside down from the velcro wall and perform the bungee run, climb.

According to Jennifer Decoudres, director of SPB, 1997's Homecoming highlights were Thursday night's concert by Cowboy Mouth and Friday's Homecoming parade.

The Homecoming parade started at 6 p.m. The parade ran from the Education Building to the Square and was followed by a pep rally.

Homecoming ended with Saturday's win against Vanderbilt and the presentation of the Homecoming court at halftime.

Of a Fraternal Nature

by Rob Robertson
Oxford Town

On Saturday, Oct. 11, roughly 600 young men charged from their dorms to Fraternity Row fanning among the 14 houses and formally beginning their Odyssey in the ubiquitous Ole Miss greek system. It marked the end of two weeks of anxiety and the start of an experience that will likely define their stay at the university more than any other.

This week also marks the first time Rush has been held in the middle of the semester. Vice-Chancellor of Student Life Richard Mullendore intiated the change ostensibly to help bring the freshman class closer together before any possible polarization might occur resulting from different affiliations within the greek system and non-greek students (independents), but also as a part of his efforts to improve student retention. After meeting with the presidents of both the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic, and observing last fall's Rush, Mullendore decided that the move was the right

Controversy engulfs UM

by Rob Robertson

Ole Miss' original peculiar institution, the waving of rebel flags at football games, may have unceremoniously been nudged into school sports history in 1997. Officially citing safety concerns, school officials banned sticks from Vaught-Hemingway Stadium on November 1, days before a nationally-televised football game against Arkansas.

In a one-paragraph statement released October 22, the university made its position clear: Consistent with the ban on umbrellas for safety reasons, effective November 1, 1997, spectators will not be permitted to bring sticks or other pointed objects to University of Mississippi athletic events.

The ban came a day after the Associated Student Body passed a historic resolution discouraging students from waving flags at football games and just over a month after head football coach Tommy Tuberville made a public plea on the front page of the Daily Mississippian for Rebel fans to "use good judgement" and leave the flags at home.

"It's time to support our teams physically, mentally, and morally with enthusiasm and not symbols," he wrote. Fans were provided with free pom-poms instead, which were left on seats in the student section and passed out to alumni as they entered the game.

New dorm weekend policy pulled

In September, students in the upperclassmen dorms were granted unlimited visitation from noon on Friday to midnight on Sunday by popular vote. On the day visitation was to begin, the plan was dropped due to a Clarion Ledger newspaper article describing them as "sleepovers." Due to an overwhelming response to Ole Miss and the College Board, the new policy was cancelled. Students were upset due to the fact that they had voted on the new plan, a common sentiment was, "What will students do after midnight that they won't do before midnight?" by Emily Boling

Doing the Grove thing

Campus park transformed on home game days

Tens of thousands of students, faculty, alumni and friends gather in the Grove on Saturdays of home football games to talk, reminisce and have a good time. Tailgaters bring everything from chicken tenders to crystal candelabas.

Otherwise, the Grove is a tranquil oasis for students to study, walk, jog, eat and lounge. The Grove, once called "The Glade," is what many Ole Miss alumni remember most when they reminisce about their days at the University.

The May Sesquicentennial graduation ceremony was also held in the Grove, as well as other Sesquicentennial activities.

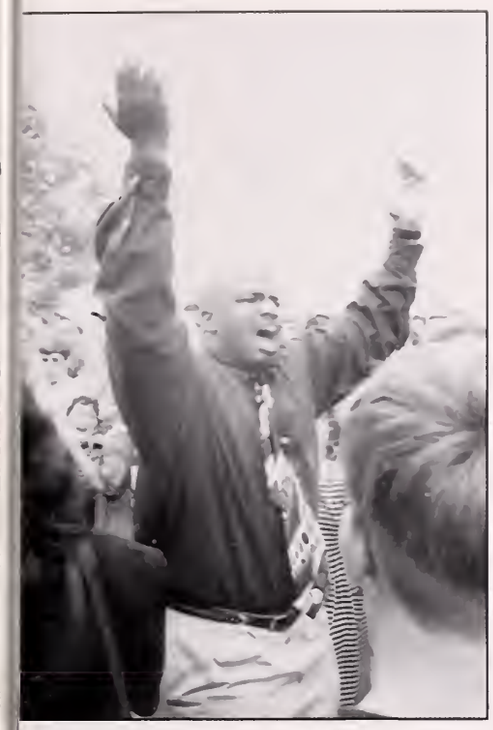

Members of groups attending conferences at the Yerby Conference Center are often greeted with meals and refreshments in The Grove.

The long-awaited enovation of Turner Center is now complete.

"The students, faculty nd staff are going to love his center," said Richard Mullendore, Di-ector of Student Life. "Our ntent is not to compete with off-campus facilities but we're definitely in that category."

The new fitness center houses brand new work-out equipment and can be used free of charge by all students, faculty and staff members who have paid their activity fees. Turner Center is currently open from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. during the week. On the weekends, the center is open from noon to 10 p.m. However, depending on demand, the center may adjust its hours to suit students' needs. According to Bill Kingery, director of Campus Recreation, the center is comprised of three sections: a cardial theater section, which includes treadmills and stationary bicycles; a resistance equipment section, which includes machines with plates and cables; and a free weight section.

One of those days...

Flat tires, bad test grades and falling down are just the beginning

by jill clark

I was sitting in French class, dead tired, when I was jolted awake by this maddeningly painful sting on my wrist. I moved my sleeve and there was this huge dime-sized bugbite. My concern grew as my whole arm became sore and kind of tingly.

So I felt like a huge idiot calling the health center about a bug bite, but if my arm turned purple and fell off it would really ruin my day.

I had to go in between classes, so I am sitting in the Health Center 10 minutes before Algebra newly convinced my pulsating, stiff arm would bring me an early death.

The doctor proclaimed it was harmless in one look. With three minutes to get to class, I landed in a huge puddle.

Sitting in Algebra soaked and irritable, I then realized worse could have happened like a random anvil falling on my head, so I should just shut up.

Student finds himself addicted to e-mail

by john scanlon

A good friend of mine has recently convinced me that I must come forward with a harsh truth.

I am an e-mail addict. I now know I must confess this newly realized vice. Facing up to my weakness is the first step of many to help me, hopefully, one day, achieve recovery.

I started off casually — just e-mailing every once in a while, you know, socially. In the beginning, I had one or two friends that had gone and signed up one day at Powers Hall, just like I had, for a lack of anyting better to do, trying to stretch that activity fee dollar.

Since I don't even own a computer, I would just check my e-mail every few months from a friend's room on campus. And I don't know how and I don't know when, but I've become an addict. It seems so harmless starting out. You get the first couple of hits for free. It takes no time and you're not really interested in the whole cyberspce world. But now I know that after graduation, I will demand access.

E-mail unites faculty, staff and students

by susan sprott

The increasing role of computers in everyday life is more than evident as it is at The University of Mississippi.

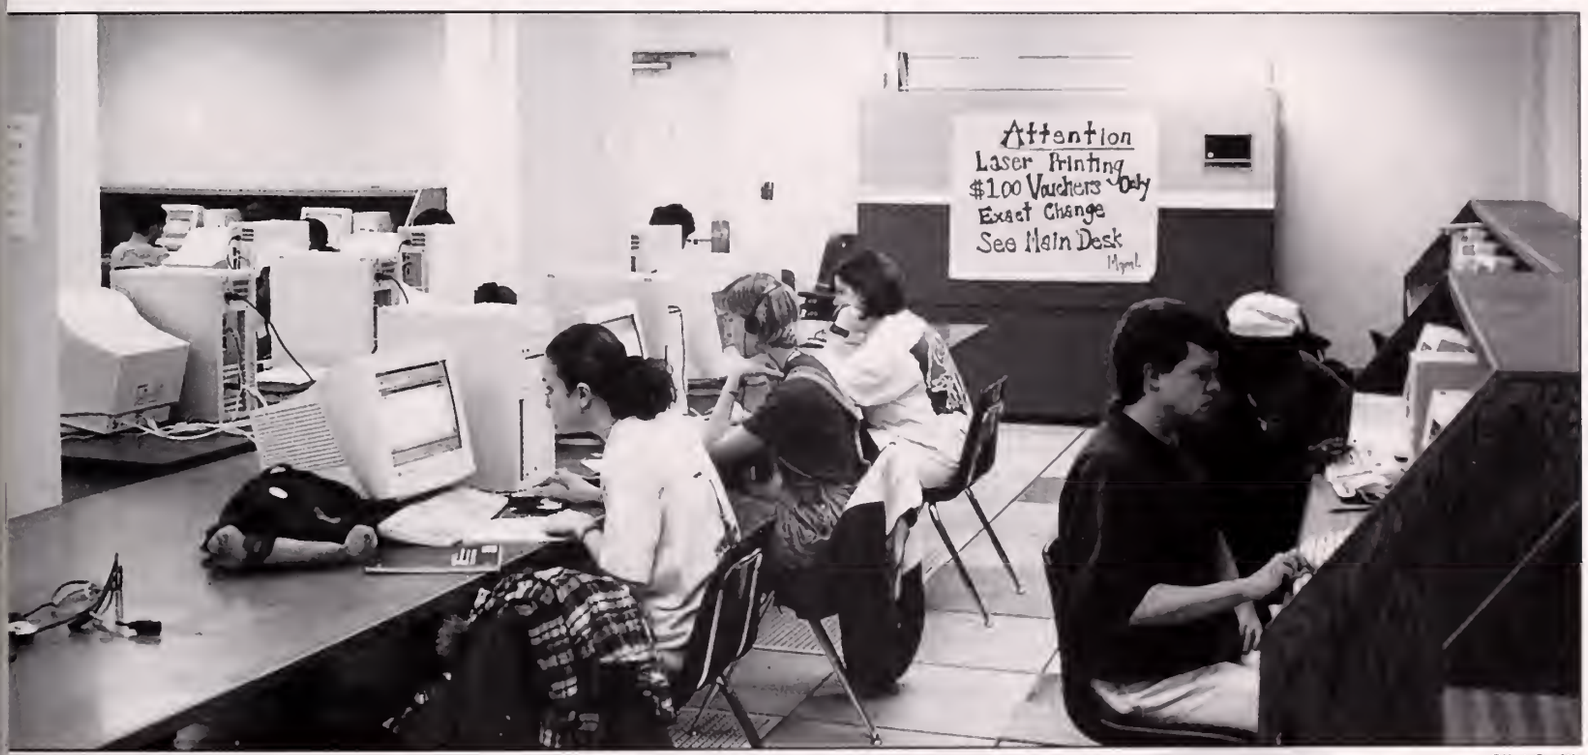

Internet access has increased for the past several years and now students even have the option to register for classes on the Ole Miss web site.

Not only is registration offered on the internet, but also information about teachers , students, scholarships, sports events, and social activities. Even the campus newspaper, The Daily Mississippian may be read via the internet.

Several teachers take advantage of new computer facilities by conducting class activities on the students' e-mail accounts.

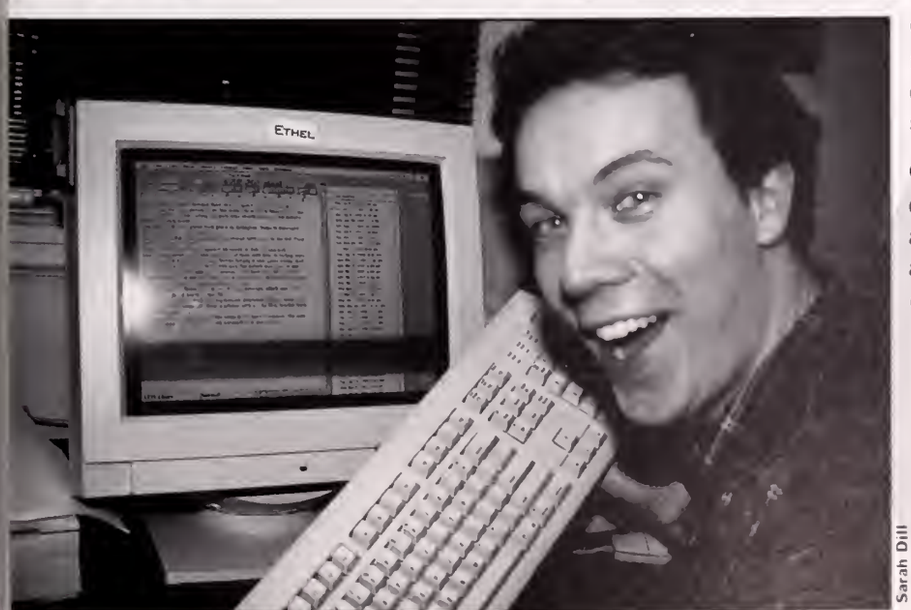

Electronic mail allows teachers to communicate with their students outside of class and on the weekends which would otherwise be impossible.

This growing interest of both students and faculty encouraged the addition of computer terminals in the library and more advanced equipment in the already existing Weir Hall computer lab.

Students ponder over getting a job or entering grad school

y susan sprott

Alongside the elief of finally grad- ating from college, nany seniors find nemselves in a bit of tight spot.

What comes ext year is ever lin- ering in most un- ergraduates' minds.

The possibilities are virtually endless for students with an undergraduates degree in hand and, come May, many students will move on to the next phase of their life.

"I took the FE, Fundamentals of Engineering exam, last fall," senior Chip Butts said. "But I am not going to grad school, so right now I am sending out my resume and hoping for a job."

There are various test offered and even required for students in their field or to further their education.

The GRE, LSAT, and MCAT are just a few of these exams.

However, many students at Ole Miss opt to take a different route. Senior Lynn Blackburn is getting married after graduation.

"I hope to move to a larger city with more theater opportunities," Blackburn said. "Then, I will consider graduate school."

Father-son pair attend law school

by john moses

Special from The Daily Mississippian

Dr. Bernard Booth III is a little older than his law school classmates, including his son Bernard IV, a first year student, yet he has a valid reason. Dr. Booth has been practicing medicine in Jackson for the past 26 years.

"It is very different, obviously, than the disciplines studied in medical school, yet they are both real privileges," said Dr. Booth. "Few people get the opportunity to attend both, and i am just grateful that I have had both opportunities."

Dr. Booth grew up in the small, central delta town of Drew before attending and graduating from Ole Miss in 1959. After graduation he attended the University of Tennessee at Memphis for medical school.

When asked about attending law school at such a unique age, Dr. Booth responded humorously, "The funny thing is that most of my classmates are either friends of my children or children of my friends."

The determination and success that characterizes Dr. Booth's education and career seems evident in his son and classmate.

"I figured law school was the way to go. It was an incentive in one way for Dad to already be here, yet in another I kind of felt like I was following exactly in his footsteps."

"Dad has helped me with basically the same things that upperclassmen usually help underclassmen," said Bernard. "He gives me advice about outlines, teachers and classes, just like an older classmate would."

Where to sit

Seating charts and attendance policies seem perplexing

The Ole Miss attendance policy allows teachers to fail a student after three absences in an attempt to encourage students to go to class. The policy works as an alternative to parents who were always waking you up in high school.

"I think you should be responsible for attending class, but lot of college students are still kids," said Collin Chase. "They need reinforcement, although failing a course for a lack of attendance is a big incentive to go to class. But attendance should be at your discretion."

Seating charts are another "High School" method still used by many professors. Vanessa Voyles states, "Seating charts undermine the college student. Just because it's easier to take atttendance that way it is degrading. But some teachers give us the option to sit up front which is helpful."

It just goes to show you that some things never change.

● Some classes that meet in Holman Hall, like other classes throughout the campus, have seating charts.

There's always a reason

Every teacher had a different policy for attendance, but students always had excuses for why they didn't attend class; however, the instructors had usually heard them 100 times already.

Here are some of the more popular excuses, some of which could be true, but were probably abused:

- My electricity went off
- My alarm didn't work (because the power went out.)
- I had a flat (but live on campus.)
- My great-grand something died (for the fourth time.)

The list goes on and on and on and on ....

Let it snow, let it snow,

Students awake to find University covered

When snow started falling late Thursday evening on Jan. 15, little did Oxford and University residents know that they would wake up blanketed by inches of snow. Classes at Ole Miss were not canceled; however, students were advised to come if conditions were not too dangerous.

Faculty who have children enrolled in Oxford/Lafayette schools were told not to come because those schools were cancelled. Most of the snow had melted by Saturday, Jan. 17.

The saying, "It's all in a day's work," seems to extend into the following morning for Ole Miss students. For those with jobs and other activites and responsibilites that seem to consume daylight hours, the late night hours seemed the only opportunity to get a job done.

The J. D. Williams Library, which stayed open 24 hours on weekdays, was one of the more popular spots to catch students researching, studying and even catching up on a little sleep between studying and reading. A handfull of local restaurants and stores also remained open for night owls.

Ole Miss' first university-wide honor code system was proposed by members of the Student Leaders' Council.

With the creation of the code will come the creation of an Honor Council which will hear the cases of students who have violated the code. The Honor Council will be made up of 12 members-eight students and four faculty members. The students will represent the eight schools.

A copy of the Honor Code will be placed in every acedemic buiding, the library and the McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College. The code will begin with students in the fall of 1998 and will be introduced through freshmen University Studies classes.

Editor's note: The Honor Code has not been officially approved by the University at press time.

A glance at 1997-98's blockbuster movies, must see TV, and notable entertainers 1997-98 was a big year in Hollywood. What were college students watching and listening to?

The big blockbuster movie was "Titanic" which surpassed "Star Wars" as the largest grossing film of all times. Other movie favorites were "Chasing Amy","Boogie Nights", "Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil"and Quinton Tarantino's comeback "Jackie Brown".

In TV land "Seinfield" and "Home Improvement" said farewell in 1998 with their final episodes. "ER" bombed with its live episode.

Hollywood saw the passing away of comedian Chris Farley and closer to home was the passing away of Blues legend "Junior" Kimbourgh. # Academics

150th ANNIVERSARY

The University of Mississippi is a state institution that broadens the horizons of students from all over the globe.

In its 150th year, the university continues the legacy of educating leaders in every venue. These leaders are representatives of the scholarly ideals upon which The University of Mississippi was founded.

The university opens the door to the technological world through the newly chartered McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College and the renovated J.D. Williams Library. These facilities provide students with access to advanced equipment and Internet resources.

Through its constant efforts to expand the scope of studies, the university strives to offer broad and varied educational opportunities to its students. All of this is in the effort to prepare graduates for success in the twenty-first century.

THE ULTIMATE Challenge

The McDonnell-Barksdale Honors college is evidence of distinguished academic performance.

by jaci leas

story by jaclyn leas

The McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College was created in spring '96 with a $5.4 million gift from two Ole Miss alums: Netscape President and CEO James L. Barksdale and his wife, Sally McDonnell Barksdale. That infusion of resources made possible a quantum leap in the evolution that began in 1953 with the Faulkner Scholars Program.

Today's Honors College provides a curriculum that encourages students to question as much as to answer. Honors students form a community of exceptional young people who challenge each other not to accept just good enough. Honors faculty know when to lead and when to step back, let the class take over, and watch the intellectual fireworks. Students accepted to the McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College will find being an honors student means more than added academic expectations.

At the University of Mississippi, honors students have 24-hour-a-day access to a whole building just for them. The new honors center is a three-story, 17,500-square-foot, completely remodeled facility. The new center is located at the heart of the campus, just a few minutes walk from major academic buildings and the student union.

Honors students not only benefit from honors College resources but also from the full resources of the University of Mississippi. Ole Miss students work hands-on with high tech equipment and use other services that would have once been science fiction a generation ago.

The average honors class has about 15 students, but many are even smaller. In this setting everyone has a chance to participate. "My second year honors Spanish class met in a conference room because there were only seven of us in it," says a student from Louisiana.

Being a student in the Honors College doesn't necessarily mean just more in-depth study, more discussion in class, more critical thinking. The Honors curriculum includes required seminars and a senior research project. In addition, honors students will find themselves behind the lectern during a short teaching experience and out in the community to fulfill a 20-hour annual service requirement for sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Students who successfully fulfill all Honors College requirements will graduate with special recognition and will receive a special distinction on their diplomas.

Faculty who teach in the Honors college love dispelling myths students have about college professors. At the University of Mississippi's new McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College, some of the brightest students in the nation are coming together to test their intellectual mettle in a uniquely challenging environment.

THE career world

The accountancy program has provided the nation with business leaders in every field.

by jaci leas

story by trey jones

To keep pace with the increasing number of career options in accounting, the University elevated its accounting program to a separate School of Accountancy in 1979. As a subject, however, accountancy has been a major part of the University's curriculum since 1848.

A national leader in accounting education, the School of Accountancy was the first in the state ti receive accreditation of it's bachelor's and master's accounting programs.

The School of Accountancy houses two national research centers: The National Tax History Research Center, co-sponsored by The Academy of Accounting Historians, and the National EDP Audit Archival Center. In addition, the School of Accountancy has two computer laboratories with seventy personal computers available for use. The research centers and computer laboratories are valuable resources for accountancy students.

The School's commitment to excellence has reaped results in the form of generous donations from alumni and friends. The national offices of highly respected firms have made major donations to the school for scholarships and the purchase of state-of-the-art equipment.

The largest fundraising campaign ever undertaken by the school was the 1984 drive to fund an endowment to honor long time faculty member H. Eugene Peery. Alumni and friends of the late professor raised more than $750,000 to establish the chair.

The School offers one undergraduate degree, the Bachelor of Accountancy, and provides training in the four major fields of Accountancy: public, management, governmental, and taxation. In addition, the school's master and doctoral programs enhance its status as a national leader in the field.

Students hold memberships in campus honoraries and in several organizations for accounting students. Ole Miss has had a Beta Alpha Psi, the national professional accounting fraternity, since 1951.

The Ole Miss accountancy program has provided Mississippi and the nation with business leaders in nearly every field of activity. Graduates have gone on to leadership positions in international accounting firms, as chief executives in Fortune 500 companies, as heads of governmental and non-profit agencies, and as owners of small (and not so small) businesses in towns throughout the mid-South. Whether in accountancy or some other field of activity, alumni have found that their accountancy education has given them the skills to succeed in life. Ole Miss accountancy graduates are a diverse lot, but they all have one thing in common: they have graduated from a program staffed by a distinguished and dedicated group of faculty.

THE Global market

The School of Business educates students to take us into the 21st century's global marketplace.

by jaci leas

story by jaclyn leas

"To provide broadly trained men capable of meeting the demands of the modern business world" proclaimed The University of Mississippi as its purpose in organizing the School of Commerce and Business Administration in September 1917.

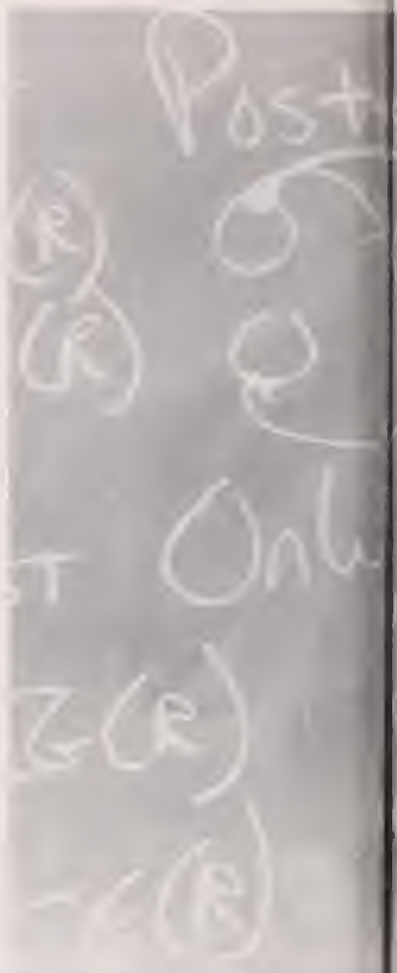

The School of Business Administration, celebrating it's 80th birthday in 1997-98, is moving forward with its plans for becoming a nationally respected center of business education and research. The recipient of a $5 million grant from a leading philanthropic foundation, the school is now on a course designed to greatly accelerate achievement of it's mission to provide its students with the broad based education they want and need to meet the challenges of the business world. Joining together in an active learning partnership, faculty, students and the business community will create the learning environment needed to give business administration and a full range of skills and leadership competencies.

The School of Business Administration has been employing outstanding faculty and using its resources to meet the increasing demands of the ever-changing business world. Such additions led the Ole Miss school to become the first accredited business program in Mississippi.

Excellent academic programs and an outstanding instructional environment are key elements in the school's strategy to chart a course to national prominence. A long-range strategic plan, a revamped undergraduate curricula, an entirely new MBA program, and a major building expansion and renovation are already in place. These and other aggressive initiatives will provide an outstanding foundation from which students will become successful business leaders for the 21st century's global marketplace.

The school highly values the application of advanced information technology in all leading teaching and research activities. Its recent occupancy of a new technologically advanced building complex will enable it to further enrich learning experiences for it's students, complementing the diversity, creativity, teamwork, and high ethical standards traditional in its history. Comprehensive programs in all major fields of business and economics enable students to attain a strong education in a major of their choice. From finance or marketing to law, medicine, or engineering -- business principals play a prominent role in the future.

Today's School of Business Administration effectively continues to fulfill that initial purpose of providing graduates who are capable of meeting the demands of a modern business world -- a world which begins in Oxford, travels throughout the state of Mississippi and the nation, and covers the globe.

THE Real World

Lifelong learning is the focus of education today, and Ole Miss is working to provide this foundation.

by jaci leas

story by alice kelly cave

Established in 1903, The University of Mississippi's School of Education is dedicated to the preparation of students for effective leadership and service in the school, home, and community. Life long learning is the focus of education today, and the School of Education is working to provide this foundation for future education. The School of Education's faculty and students are committed to excellence and higher learning.

The School of Education is administered by Dean Chambless who was appointed in fall 1997. The School of Education is divided into four departments each under the leadership of a chair. The departments are curriculum and Instruction, Education Leadership and Educational psychology, Exercise Science and Leisure Management, and Family and Consumer Sciences. The goal of the professional Education Unit is to improve the quality of life in Mississippi and in the region.

The School of Education instills exemplary programs for the preparation and continuing education of teachers, school counselors, and educational leaders. The School of Education has been rewarded and recognized for those exemplary practices. To complete this goal, the unit has developed professional education programs based on knowledge and skills, research findings, and sound professional practice. All professional education programs are designed to reflect the philosophy and themes of it's knowledge base.

The School of Education was recently granted continuing accreditation for the next five years from the National Council for Accreditation for Teacher Education (NCATE).

Student teaching is an elementary education major's opportunity to implement what he/she has learned at Ole Miss in an elementary school classroom. Every senior elementary education major student teaches as required by the department for education.

During the fall semester, each Ole Miss education student is placed at one of eight different schools ranging from Ponotoc to New Albany to Oxford. The spring semester consists of observation labs and action labs where students observe, assist, and teach at least one lesson in the classroom. Education majors alternate between three weeks of classroom experience and three weeks of seminars at the University. During the Spring semester, each student is assigned to one classroom in the area.

While many typical college students sleep late and take afternoon naps, a student teacher must remain in school all day, participate in early morning duty, and attend faculty meetings. Each student teacher is given the opportunity to teach several lessons as well as develop close, personal relationships with the students in their classrooms.

THE technology approach

The primary function of the School of Engineering is to educate future engineers for the advancement of our society.

by jaci leas

story by sommer sneed

The School of Engineering at the University of Mississippi was the first engineering school established in the state. The Board of Trustees' program for natural sciences was founded at the university and later, in 1900, The University of Mississippi School of Engineering was officially founded.

The dean of the School of Engineering is Dr. Allie M. Smith. He is the leader of a variety of engineering branches including chemical, electrical, civil, mechanical, and geological engineering, and computer science and telecommunications. These divisions are housed in Weir, Carrier, and Anderson halls on the University campus.

In addition to the many branches of engineering, the School of Engineering also offers a number of extra-curricular activities and prominent student organizations, such as Tau Beta Pi. The University of Mississippi is the home of the Mississippi Beta chapter of Tau Beta Pi, the national honorary fraternity for engineering students. Other organizations include student chapters of the American Institute for Chemical Engineers, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Association for Computing Machinery and the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers. All of these chapters are devoted to furthering the education and professional development of Americas future engineers.

The School of Engineering at The University of Mississippi prides itself in individual attention in education. Small classes provide more one on one interaction between students and professors. Individual hands on experiments also assist in furthering the complete engineering education. In conglomeration with the school, the research centers provide great resources for furthering technology, and are paramount to an engineering student's educational experience. These centers include the Center for Computational Hydroscience, the Center for Wireless Communications, the composite Materials Research Group, and the Mississippi Mineral Resources Institute.

The primary function of the School of Engineering at The University of Mississippi is to educate future engineers for the betterment of our society. The engineers emerging from the University of Mississippi will clean up our environment, boost the economy, and ensure the safety of impending generations, while carrying on the respect and the great educational traditions they have learned at The University of Mississippi.

The School of Engineering at Ole Miss is comprised of six academic departments that will advance their graduating students with career objectives for the future. The Engineering school is credited for producing many of the nation's top leaders in various fields of engineering.

story by jill clark

The University of Mississippi College of Liberal Arts takes pride in being the oldest academic division in the University. The college was founded in 1848 with just four professors. In one hundred and fifty years, it has grown into the largest of the University's schools, instructing over half of the students on campus.

With 230 professors, The College of Liberal Arts provides a broad spectrum of comprehensive curriculum, offering classes from the fine arts to the humanities to the sciences. graduates can be rewarded one of five different degrees: Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Music, and Bachelor of Social Work. The college of Liberal Arts has graduated over 30,000 students during it's existence.

The school offers majors in nearly fifty fields. Such majors offered include English, Anthropology, Modern Languages, Classics, Fine Arts, Forensic Science, Journalism, Biology, Chemistry, History, music, psychology, and political science.

This past year, several major news events occurred in the College of Liberal Arts. A generous donation, a prestigious award, a new foundation, and a change of location all have brought the school into headline attention.

In 1997, a donor gave $660,000 to The University of Mississippi. It's purpose was to fund a Chair of Faulkner Studies in order to commemorate Oxford's most famous late writer. Previously known as the Howry Foundation, the Faulkner Studies department will now have more funding to further become the superior authority in William Faulkner studies.

Liberal arts professor Dr. Colby Kullman received the Elsie M. Hood Outstanding Teacher of the year Award. This highly regarded honor is given annually to a University instructor who has proven to be remarkable in his or her field and in communicating its principles to others. Kullman was chosen by nominations from faculty, students, and alumni, and by a committee whose members were previous recipients of the award. Along with a cash prize and limelight attention, Kullman will also have his name inscribed on a plaque and hung in the Chancellor's office with the rest of the awards' honorees.

The Ventress Order, which is named for University founder James Alexander Ventress, has been established to support the College of Liberal Arts and give alumni the opportunity to remain a contributing part of the University. To become a member, alumni must provide a generous financial gift beginning at a minimum set by the foundation. The monetary support is intended to ensure an excellent liberal arts education when state funds are insufficient.

THE mission possible

The mission of the School of Pharmacy is to improve the health of Mississippi citizens as well as those of the nation and world.

by jaci leas

story by jaclyn leas

The School of Pharmacy was created by the Board of Trustees on July 1, 1908. The objective of the doctor of Pharmacy Curriculum is to provide an academic foundation with adequate professional experience to enable a graduate to successfully deliver pharmaceutical care in a variety of practice settings: community practice, institutional practice, managed care organizations, government services, etc. In order to accomplish this objective, the school offers two degree programs, (1) a four-year baccalaureate in pharmaceutical sciences degree, and (2) an advanced professional two-year Doctor of Pharmacy degree.

The mission of The University of Mississippi School of Pharmacy is to improve the health of our state citizens as well as the nation and the world by educating pharmacy practitioners, pharmaceutical scientists and other health professials via a variety of degree programs including the Bachelor of Science in Pharmaceutical Sciences, Doctor of Pharmacy, and by facilitating the establishment of postdoctoral residencies and fellowship.

Research activities are conducted within each academic department and in the Research Institute of Pharmaceutical. The Bureau of Pharmaceutical Services is responsible for the service activities of the School of Pharmacy.

The School of Pharmacy holds membership in the American Association of colleges of Pharmacy, an organization of the colleges of pharmacy of the United States the object of which is to promote pharmaceutical education and research.

The pharmacist occupies a position of great trust and responsibility in fulfilling duties in safeguarding the health of the citizens of the community. In order to foster the highest ideals of professional ethics, students enrolled adhere to an honor system that regulates their conduct during professional course work and examinations. Any case involving an infraction of the provisions of the honor system is adjudicated by a judicial council composed of student members elected by their classmates and under the chairmanship of the student body president. Disciplinary decisions of this council are reffered for review to the Dean of the School of Pharmacy prior to implementation.

The Bachelor of Science in Pharmaceutical Sciences is not a practice degree nor does it entitle one to sit for licensure examination. This degree provides the academic preparation for admission into the Doctor of Pharmacy program, a graduate degree program in the biomedical or are be available to provide specialization in the latter phases of the B.S. pharmaceutical curriculum in order to provide the necessary preparartion to enter a pharmaceutical science or pharmacy-related career path.

THE GRADUATE School

The Graduate School offers students a higher level of education and broader horizons for the future.

by jaci leas

story by nancy shands

The University of Mississippi, from its formal opening in 1848 until 1870, conferred the honorary degree of Master of Arts upon those certain graduates who attained intellectual distinction. Courses at the graduate level were offered first in 1870, and a comprehensive exam as a requirement for the MA degree was also established that year. A definite program of graduate study with the minimum residence requirement of one year academic year was established in 1890. During the past ninety years, graduate work at The University of Mississippi has been continually developed.

The Graduate School, which has been in existence since 1927, is still growing today. With 11,000 students enrolled at The University of Mississippi, approximately 1,800 of these students are enrolled in the Graduate School. Twenty-five percent of these 1,800 students are international students, adding to the diversity of the school. The Graduate School has seventy degree programs and offers master and doctorate degrees in accountancy, art, business administration, education, fine arts, music, science, social science, and taxation. The Graduate School, which administers all graduate study at the University, holds membership in the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States. Its faculty consists of about 400 members, who are qualified to offer graduate work.

The Associated Graduate Student Body at Ole Miss addresses the needs and concerns of the graduate students on the Oxford campus. The AGSB officers and senate work with the faculty, administration and other student organizations to promote higher academic achievement and standards, to provide interdepartmental communication among graduate students, and to provide graduate students with more opportunities for social interaction. By addressing common concerns of its membership, the AGSB strives to eliminate much of the unnecessary stress often associated with graduate student life.

Some of the research facilities associated with the Graduate School included the Jamie Whitten National Center for Physical Acoustics, the National Center for the Development of Natural Products, the Center for Wetlands and Water Resources, the Mississippi Center for Supercomputing Research, the Center for Wireless Communication, the Center for Computational Hydroscience and Engineering, and the National Food Service Management Institute.

"The Graduate School is a vital part of this institution," Don Cole, associate dean, said.

The Graduate School represents research and provides the institution with the knowledge that is needed. The Graduate School stands as a base for the knowledge and understanding of The University of Mississippi.

THE southern Tradition

The Southern Studies department takes a deep look into the culture and history of the South

by jaci leas

story by lindsey wilson

In 1975, a group of faculty members met to create an area of study to enhance the educational emphasis on topics dealing with the Southern culture. Due to a wave of regional study programs across the country, the group pursued the topic even further.

For two years the group gathered to establish the department. In 1977, the Center for the Study of Southern Culture was formed. Soon after, in 1986 , its masters program was established.

The department has a faculty of six core professors and 24 professors circulating from other departments, adding to a well rounded faculty with much diversity. Within the school there are approximately 60 undergraduates and 44 graduates.

The Southern Studies department encourages a plethora of topics for research. Some of the student's theses are: Negro League baseball teams, William Faulkner, Chickasaw Indian Nation, Elvis cults, Southern Baptists, and numerous folk art themes.

Also in relation to the southern studies department, William Ferris, who was the center's founding director, was recently appointed by President Bill Clinton to be the chairman for The National Endowment for Humanities.

"We are delighted about his appointment," said Susan Glisson, graduate coordinator and research associate at the Center, "I know it will create many rewards for his career."

Glisson also commented on how the National Endowment for Humanities focused on the "high culture." she said that Ferris, whose main area of study is folk culture, will apply his knowledge to theirs and make the "puzzle" a little more complete.

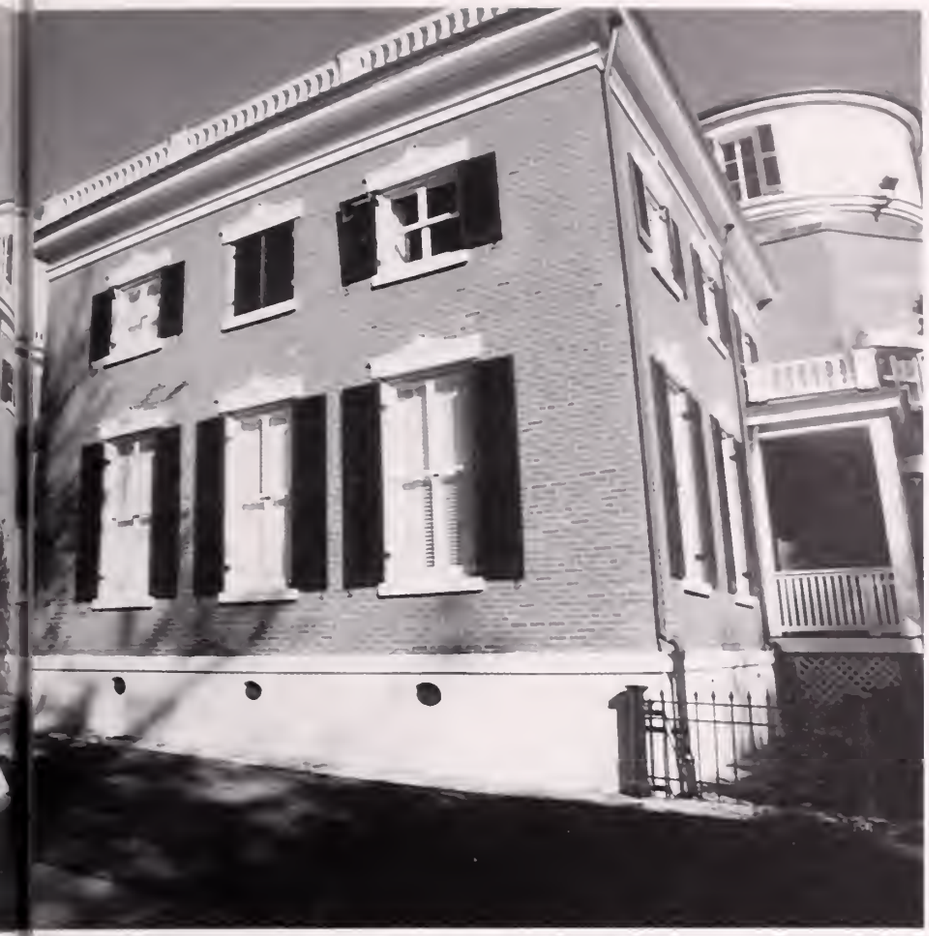

The Center, which is celebrating it's twentieth anniversary this year, looks optimistically towards the future. Because of the loss of their past director and due to the twenty year mark, the department has now been given a chance to pause and reevaluate what they have done.

They are now in the process of creating a new mission statement and finding a new director. They seek a director who will carry on the tradition and outstanding reputation of the Southern Studies department here at The University of Mississippi.

ON THE ANNIVERSARY...
"For 150 years The University of Mississippi has been a crucible of change within the American South. Her faculty, administration and students have maintained a commitment to academic excellence in each generation. The university's resources prepare each of us for the new challenges that will come in the next century."

Dear Ole Miss Students,

When we reflect on the 1997-98 academic year, we are pleased with the progress we made as a community, challenged by extraordinary opportunities, and excited about our future. This truly remarkable year was characterized by your energy, vitality and spirit. Your individual personalities became the collective personality of Ole Miss.

We began this year with student led orientation sessions for the largest, most diverse freshmen class in history. You came to us from forty-eight states and sixty-five nations. You experienced "Move in Mania" and you joined the faculty, staff, and alumni who who are deeply committed to assuring that we continue our relentless pursuit of excellence.

Our quest to obtain a coveted Phi Beta Kappa Chapter intensified with the preparation and filing of the application for a charter for this prestigious academic Honor Society. The McDonnell-Barksdale Honors College welcomed its first freshmen class and began a journey made possible by Netscape President and CEO jim Barksdale and his wife Sally McDonnell Barksdale- both Ole Miss alumni. The goal of the College is to provide extraordinary people.

As we walked across our campus, it seemed that bricks and mortar were in motion. Approximately $70 million in state and private funding was allocated to the Oxford campus for repair, renovation, restoration, and construction projects designed to enhance the teaching and learning environment. Recognizing that today's quest for knowledge is deeply rooted in technology, the building and renovation projects feature state-of-the -art technological resources. For example, we opened Holman Hall-- part of a $24 million business and accountancy complex-- with over 100 miles of cable providing 2,000 network connections. Ole Miss was selected "100 Most Wired Colleges" in Yahoo's online magazine, Yahoo! Internet life.

The J.D. Williams Library expansion enabled us to attract additional resources from the Donald W. Reynolds Foundation. To honor Ole Miss alumnus E.H. Patterson, a gift of $16.5 million provided $8 million for the Library Endowment. With other gifts we were able to double the book acquisition budget--thereby providing greater resources for our students and faculty.

And yet another exciting event during our academic year was hosting a third taping of PBS' Firing Line from C.M. Tad Smith Coliseum with an audience of 7,000, bringing national and international figures to campus to debate the topic, Resolved: Trade with China Should Not Be Interrupted. The production was part of the University's Sesquicentennial celebration of the School of Business Administration's 80th anniversary.

It is an exciting time to be a member of the Ole Miss community, as so many of you have joined our unwavering commitment to be recognized as one of America's Great Public Universities. To the 1998 graduates, we wish you success in your personal and professional pursuits. The University is truly reflected in the lives of our students , alumni, faculty, and staff. Please keep the flame of academic excellence burning bright now and in the 21st century through your support of educational opportunities and outstanding programs at your university.

The faculty and staff join me in thanking each of you.

Distinction

150th ANNIVERSARY

For 150 years, the University of Mississippi has sought to distinguish itself. Amid the mundaneness of the everyday lives of students, a select few propel the university's excellence.

Whereas one sees herself flashed up on the football stadium's screen, her crown magnified and herself glorified, another hears the ringing support of the student body as he is chosen for Alumni Hall of Fame.

On the other hand, a student government representative touches ground and transforms into a liaison to help students evolve politically.

Although these are the images of today, the thumbprints of the past remain etched upon the university as the outstanding continue to endure uncommonly.

Even the Chancellor was a football player and stood vividly as Colonel Reb.

All abide outstandingly and persist remarkably. They are well defined, and they are ours. These elect symbolize DISTINCTION.

OPPOSITE: Chancellor Robert Khayat as Colonel Reb, 1960-61.
TOP LEFT: Riding in the homecoming parade is Alumni Hall of Famer of 1997, Parham H. Williams Jr., flanked by two fans.

Sports 150th ANNIVERSARY

The role of student athletes at the University of Mississippi possesses a two-fold mission. Not only are they responsible for the expected success in the classroom along with all other Ole Miss students, but student athletes must also represent the excellence present at Ole Miss on their respective fields and courts in a display of sportsmanship, courage, and determination. The intensity of national collegiate athletics is an aspect of the university that bonds together students, staff, alumni, and friends in a common cause to encourage and support our impressive teams. Along with these nationally competitive athletic teams at Ole Miss exist an array of intramural and recreational sports that allow all students to become involved in the athletic tradition at the university. Through these programs students can participate and succeed in the sports that they have always loved. The combinations of all these athletic aspects present at Ole Miss, from football Homecoming in the fall to a round of golf in the spring at the university course, provides an environment that nurtures the excitement and passion of athletics at our university.

Freshman Deuce McAllister caught a touchdown pass and ran for the winning score with 31 seconds to play to cap a wild second half as Ole Miss defeated Marshall, 34-31, in the inaugural Motor City Bowl. The Rebels improved to 10-0 against non-conference teams under coach Tommy Tuberville. The eight victories are the most for the Rebels since the 1992 squad finished 9-3.

The Rebels were led by quarterback Stewart Patridge, who completed 29-of-47 passes for 332 yards and three touchdowns, and running back John Avery, who gained 110 yards on 27 carries.

Marshall star receiver Randy Moss caught six passes for 173 yards, including an 80-yard touchdown on the Thundering Herd's first play from scrimmage. Moss, who finished fourth in balloting for the Heisman Trophy, caught 96 passes for 1,820 yards on the season.

Marshall took a 17-7 advantage into the second half but Ole Miss sliced into the lead on its first possession of the third quarter as Patridge hit Andre Rone on a crossing pattern over the middle for a 13-yard score. The Rebels took the lead nine minutes into the quarter, 21-17, as Patridge hit McAllister wide open in the right flat. McAllister raced untouched down the sideline for a 20-yard score.

Five minutes into the fourth quarter, Marshall regained the lead, 24-21, on a 6-yard screen pass from Chad Pennington to Doug Chapman. A 19-yard pass from Stewart to Grant Heard put the Rebels back in front, but Ole Miss missed the extra-point to keep Marshall within three, 27-24.

The Herd drove right down the field on the next possession, going 80 yards in nine plays over 2:42, to take its final lead, 31-27. On third-and-goal from the 9, Chapman burst up the middle for his third touchdown of the game.

But Ole Miss had enough time to drive for the winning score. McAllister set up his own touchdown with a 24-yard run on third-and-one to the Marshall 17. Patridge followed with a 9-yard completion to Heard and, two plays later, the freshman's 1-yard dive won the game for the Rebels.

Ole Miss played its first ever overtime game against the most unlikely of opponents, pulling out a nail-biting 24-23 win over the Central Florida Knights.

Central Florida and Duante Culpepper established their intent early in the game with a 14-yard touchdown strike, the first score of the game.

On the next drive, Ole Miss suffered the biggest blow of the game when John Avery went down with an injury. Avery was taken to Baptist Memorial and diagnosed as having a dislocated elbow.

Although the Rebels had several exciting runs the Knights continually made the offense put the ball in the air. Thankfully, Stewart Patridge came alive and had the best game of his career, completing 24 of 37 for 303 yards.

The second half of the game proved to be a see-saw battle as Ole Miss could not shake off Central Florida.

In the third quarter it appeared the Rebels were ready to put the game away , with a 17-10 lead and the ball on the 35. Then Ole Miss fumbled the ball and Central Florida recovered. Gene McDowell made several gutsy calls on fourth down allowing the Knights to tie up the game.

Overtime saw the Rebels drive to the end zone in the first three plays of overtime. Rufus French hauled in the go ahead touchdown, and Steve Lindsey kicked the extra point.

On Central Florida's possession the crowd saw Culpepper throw a 21-yard touchdown from the shotgun. The Knights went for the win, but on the two-point conversion, Culpepper fumbled the ball on the one yard line. This gave Ole Miss the hard-fought victory.

Heading into the game against SMU, the Rebel coaching staff said all week they wanted to open up the offense. They did and Ole Miss improved to 2-0 on the year with a 23-15 victory over the Mustangs.

SMU received the kickoff and went four downs and out. Ole Miss scored on their second possession by a Tony Cannion 15 yard touchdown run. The drive took seven plays, five of which were Cannion carries.

The Rebels them went to an air attack with the next possession. This lead to a Stewart Patridge to Robert Reed touchdown. Reed made the first touchdown of his Rebel career.

Tommy Tuberville was very pleased with the way the Rebels started the game.

"We came out real strong in the first quarter, executing very well on offense. Our defense also played well, not allowing them (SMU) to have any serious scoring opportunities," Tuberville said.

During the second half, Ole Miss went to the ground and proved that they had a good running back in true freshman Deuce McAllister. The Rebels opening drive ended in an interception, but McAllister was the Rebs' power for the rest of the game.

At one point McAllister carried the ball six straight times. The Rebels were daring the Mustangs to stop him. Up the middle for 37 yards; wide right for 8,3,6, and 8 yards; left for seven more. McAllister got what he wanted when he wanted it.

Although the score was only an eight point difference, the Rebels outplayed SMU in virtually every category.

Following the victory over SMU, the Ole Miss seniors issued a challenge to the underclassmen to "step up their play". For 50 minutes during the game at 16th ranked Auburn, the young Rebels rose to the test before 81,000 fans.

In the end it was Auburn's experienced and tenacious defense and the Tiger offense's ability to convert on third and long that allowed Auburn to claim a 19-9 victory over Ole Miss.

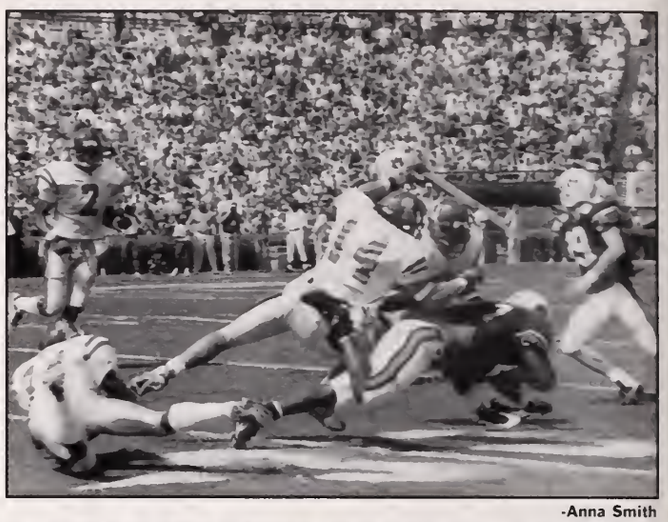

Auburn took their opening drive 86 yards for a field goal. Ole Miss answered right back with a 52 yard field goal by Steve Lindsey, the first of his three. On the drive The Rebels gambled and hit the jackpot, a fake punt on which Robert Reed gained 30 yards.

For the entire second quarter, Ole Miss and Auburn traded punts and the two teams went into half-time tied at three Tommy Tuberville was pleased with the Rebels' ability to hang with the Tigers in the first half.

"I told them at the half that we were in better shape than they were and that if we could correct our mistakes we would win the ballgame," Tuberville said.

In the fourth quarter disaster struck the Rebels. Ole Miss called a naked bootleg from the end zone. A Tiger defender then came around the corner and sacked Stewart Patridge for a safety.

Following the game, Tuberville said, "I'm pleased with our effort, but we're going to have to find a way to get over this hump. If today was any indication, we're not far behind the sixteenth ranked team in America,"

story by doug comfort

When you are short on scholarships and manpower, you'll take a win in any form it presents it self. The 15-3 Rebel victory over the Vanderbilt Commodores, by all accounts, wasn't pretty but was welcomed by Ole Miss coaches and players. This was especially true after comments about Ole Miss by Vandy head coach Woody Widenhofer earlier in the week.

"Our guys are pretty sensitive to things said about them," said Tommy Tuberville in reference to Widenhofer's comment that Vanderbilt was a better team than Ole Miss.

Any offensive power that Ole Miss lacked was made up for by the Rebel defense. Vanderbilt came into the game with the nation's 7th-rated defense, but it was the Rebels who came up with big plays all night long. "The defense was outstanding tonight with the way they played the entire game," said sophomore tight end Rufus French.

The outstanding play French was referring to included a safety recorded in the second quarter when defensive end Johnny Jones tackled the Commodores tailback in the south end zone of Vaught-Hemingway. A key interception by Malikia Griffin after a Broc Kreitz tipped pass sealed the game for Ole Miss midway through the fourth quarter.

Couple those plays with the Rebel ability to stop Vanderbilt on third down and it is easy to see what caused the post-game frustration in the Commodores locker room.

"Ole Miss flat whipped us tonight," said Widenhofer. "We had opportunities late, but we got no points out of them. Ole Miss did an excellent job on defense."

Ole Miss knew that if they had any chance to defeat Tennessee in Knoxville, they would have to play a near perfect game. The Rebels didn't quite play a perfect game and the result, a 17-31 loss to the Vols showed on the scoreboard when the final whistle blew.

The Ole Miss defense came ready to play, stopping Tennessee from scoring on their first three possessions. UT's third possession appeared to be scoring drive, Malikia Griffin notched his second interception of the year, picking off Peyton Manning at the one yard line.

The Rebel offense came to life, following the interception, but a mishandled snap was fumbled and recovered by the Vols.

The turning moment of the game came on the second half kickoff when John Avery fielded the kick three yards into the end zone and ran it out. Avery found a seam and appeared to be racing for a touchdown until the ball popped loose.

Stewart Patridge was intercepted on the next drive by Dwayne Goodrich who ran it back for a touchdown. Neyland Stadium began emptying following that score.

Avery made up for his fumble with a 74-yard touchdown run that cut the lead to 21-9. The third quarter would see no more scoring. On the Rebs' next possession, they mounted an 80-yard drive.

Coach Tuberville was pleased with the effort, but disappointed with the outcome. "I'm proud of the way our kids played today. They showed a lot of heart and character and I wouldn't trade any one of them."

Tommy Tuberville picked up his biggest win as a head coach as Ole Miss whipped the 8th-ranked LSU Tigers 36-21 before a sellout crowd at Tiger Stadium.

All week long Tuberville preached that the time for moral victories was over—it was time to play to win. The Rebs responded by outperforming LSU in nearly every statistical category—but most importantly, on the board.

"This is unbelievable," said an ecstatic Tuberville following the game. "We really gave them an old fashioned butt whippin'. All the credit in the world goes to our coaches and players."

Patridge led the Ole Miss offense on five touchdown scoring drives with 346 yards through the air, a career high, on 27 of 43 passing.

Ole Miss took an early 7-0 lead on 51-yard drive, but LSU answered right back when quarterback Herb Tyler faked an option pitch and ran 72 yards for a Tiger score.

Ole Miss would go back on top when Deuce McAllister pounded in from two yards out, but LSU would score 14 unanswered points, both scoring runs by Kevin Faulk.

The Rebel defense was spectacular, causing two second-half turnovers and picking up four of their six defensive sacks.

Following the scoring play of Patridge to Heard, Timothy Strickland picked off a Tyler pass at the LSU 47-yard line. The offense took over and marched the ball 41 yards, setting up a 23-yard field goal by Steve Lindsey for the final points of the afternoon.

Alabama outscored Ole Miss 22-6 in the second half of Saturday's game to take a 29-20 win over the Rebels. The Crimson Tide used a balanced attack on offense—obviously their best performance of the year—to wear down the Ole Miss defense.

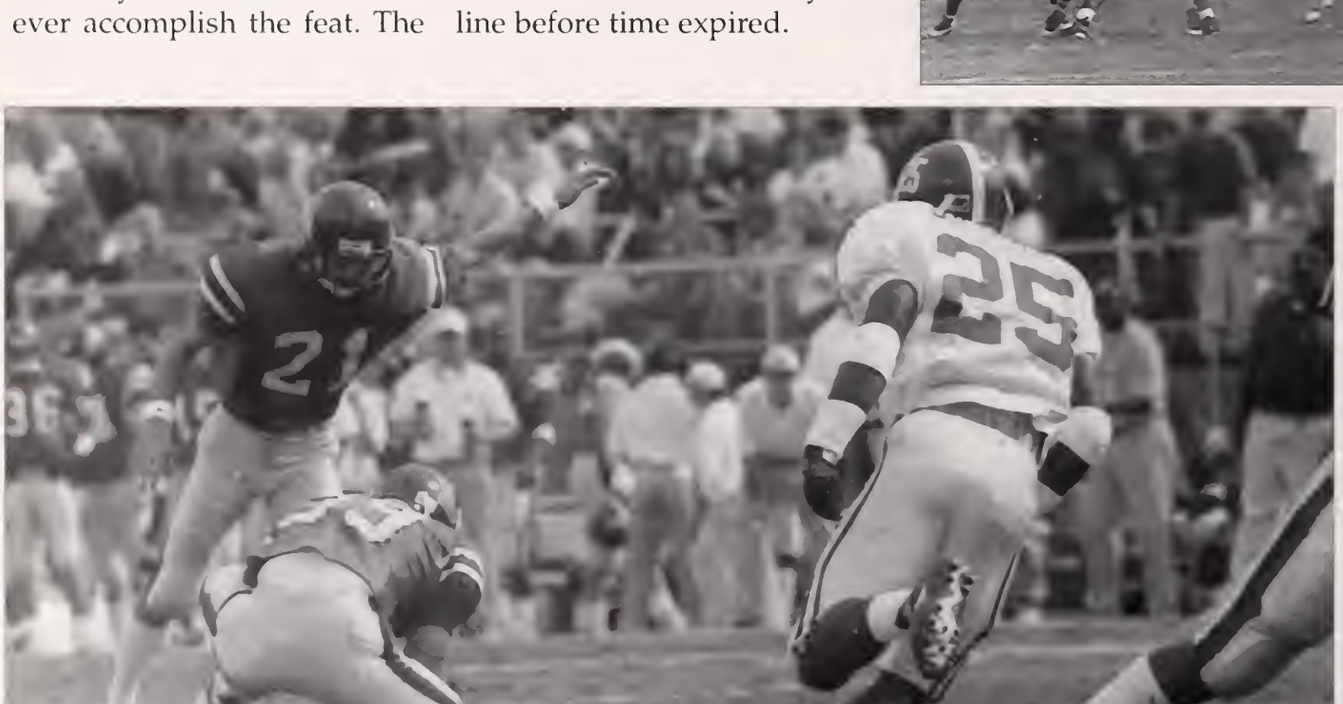

Stewart Patridge, who set a new Rebel record with his sixth 200-yard passing game this year, hooked up with Rufus French for Ole Miss' first score. Ole Miss scored again on a 10-yard run by John Avery.

During the second half, the rains came and so did the Tide. The Rebels' lone touchdown came on a controversial 100-yard kickoff return by John Avery. It marked Avery's second 100 yard TD return, the only Ole Miss Rebel to ever accomplish the feat. The touchdown closed the gap to nine points, but Avery was flagged for celebrating by diving into the end zone. Despite having three men on him and diving from the two appearing to be the only way he could score, the officials threw the flag and drew the ire of Tommy Tuberville. "That was the worst call in the history of college football. The guy was running for his life. Trying to score by diving into the end zone is not celebrating. If it is, then we need to stop playing college football," a very angry Tuberville said.

Following the score, the Alabama offense drove deep into Ole Miss territory, but the Rebel defense forced and recovered a fumble. The Rebel offense then marched down to the Alabama 25-yard line before time expired.

arkansas vs. ole miss

story by doug comfort

Ole Miss used one big running play by John Avery and a relentless defensive pursuit to defeat Arkansas 19-9 before 30,620 fans at Vaught-Hemingway Stadium and a national television audience.

Avery recorded his fourth consecutive 100-yard rushing game with 150 yards on 24 carries. Ninety-seven of those yards came on one touchdown run early in the fourth quarter. The play turned out to be the longest run from scrimmage in Ole Miss football history and the longest run ever given up by an Arkansas football team. It also marked the second touchdown of the night for Avery. He scored earlier on a six yard scramble.

After cutting the Ole Miss lead, Arkansas had several chances to tie or take the lead, but the Rebel defense came through with a touchdown of their own. Stoerner succumbed to intense defensive pressure by the Rebels when Derrick Burgess forced a fumble in the endzone that was recovered by Arkansas native Michael Boone for an Ole Miss touchdown. The Rebels went for two on the conversion try, but failed, yielding a score of 19-7.

The Hogs had two more cracks at the endzone that resulted in interceptions by Gary Thigpen in the endzone and Walker Jones at the one yard line. Following Jones' interception, the Rebels were forced to punt from their own endzone.

Instead of punting, though, the Rebels took a safety. The play allowed Ole Miss to back up Arkansas their own 30-yard line on the resulting kickoff. With just under three minutes. left, the Hogs could not drive the 70 yards it took for a score and Ole Miss walked away victorious.

ole miss vs. tulane

story by doug comfort

The Ole Miss offense has grown to love the state of Louisiana. One month ago against LSU in "Death Valley", the Rebel offense put up 36 points. The Rebels did even better than that for their encore performance against Tulane in the Superdome, as Ole Miss erupted for 41 points to defeat Tulane 41-24.

\ In the second quarter John Avery scored from four yards out to put Ole Miss on top 10-7. Avery would play no more, though, as he suffered a bruised sternum. Tulane answered with a field goal and interception return for a touchdown to reclaim the lead 17-10.

Senior quarterback Stewart Patridge stepped in following the interception and began to pick apart the Tulane defense. The Green Wave stacked six to eight men along the line of scrimmage much of the night, allowing Patridge to find his receivers along crossing patterns. With his 268 yard passing performance, Patridge becomes the only Rebel quarterback to throw for 200+ yards for seven games in a season.

The Rebels scored once more before the half—this one a very familiar goal line plunge from one yard out by Deuce McAllister.

The fourth quarter proved to be all Ole Miss, as Deuce McAllister, running with the chants of "Deuce" from the nearly 20,000 Rebel fans in attendance, proved to be too overwhelming for the Tulane defensive line. The Rebels marched down the field early in the fourth quarter and added their final touchdown when Patridge threw nine yards to Eli Anding. Steve Lindsey added a 21-yard field goal to round out the scoring.

The Rebels fell to Georgia in a tight game, but the UM offense proved it could move the ball. Stewart Patridge set Ole Miss single season records for completions (208) and yards (2,433) while completing 33-of-43 passes for 292 yards and two touchdowns.

Patridge's second touchdown pass was a 35-yarder to Cory Peterson, who caught a tipped pass between a host of defenders and teammates on the final play of the game to make the score more respectable.

The Rebels stopped a Georgia scoring chance on its previous drive when Mitch Baker blocked a 32-yard field goal attempt by Dax Langley. The Bulldog holder got a high snap placed on the ground, but not quick enough to prevent the block. The Bulldogs scored first for the ninth time in 10 games.

Ole Miss, which out gained Georgia 414 total yards to 406, needed just six plays to respond, Patridge threaded a pass between two defenders for a 24-yard TD pass to L.J. Taylor. This was Taylor's ,a red-shirted freshman, first NCAA touchdown.

While Patridge had his eighth 200-yard passing game, also a single-season Ole Miss record, Mike Bobo had his second-lowest passing total of the season. Courtesy of Rebel defensive backs tight coverage on Hines Ward. John Avery had his fifth 100-yard rushing effort in the last six games for Ole Miss, with 114 yards on 20 carries.

Rebel fullback Eli Anding summed up the game by saying "We shot ourselves in the foot. We can move the ball on Georgia. We did move the ball...we just didn't capitalize on it."

Coach Tommy Tuberville went with his first instinct, and Ole Miss converted a 2-point conversion in the final minute to beat Mississippi State 15-14 in the annual backyard brawl that began with a real fight.

Ole Miss called a timeout after Stewart Patridge threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Andre Rone — their second scoring connection of the game — with 25 seconds remaining.

"I changed my mind twice and you always go with your first instinct," Tuberville said of the decision not to settle for overtime. "I saw the look in the offensive line's eyes and couldn't deny them the chance."

Patridge had completed six passes as Ole Miss, which hadn't scored since the opening possession of the game, drove 63 yards in 1:47 after a second missed field goal by Mississippi State's Brian Hazelwood.

He then hit Cory Peterson, who had a defender right on his back, for the game-winning points.

"At first it was going to be an extra point. All of the players, when you make a drive like that, want to win. They don't want overtime," Peterson said. "I was open for a split second, and Stewart made a great throw."

During warm-ups about 40 minutes before the game, a brawl broke out between the two teams. The fight, which included some slugging and a couple of flying helmets, had to be broken up by coaches and security personnel, including Mississippi Highway Patrol officers.

"You can't dream any better than this. I dreamed of the Egg Bowl coming down to the last play," said Patridge, whose father and uncle both played for Mississippi State.

cheerleaders

School spirit is an integral part of life at the University of Mississippi. A select few have been strategically placed in order to maintain a high morale within the crowd. Not only do cheerleaders have the responsibility to pump up the students at Ole Miss, but also they must rekindle the flame of alumni and guests that come and watch the Rebels play.

The varsity cheerleading squad consists of 14 students dedicated to promoting excitement and pride for the Ole Miss athletes. There are seven men and seven women who continually work together as cheerleaders. Each member of the varsity cheerleaders is required to run at 6 o'clock in the morning two times a week, while the average student is still in bed. In addition to running, they must attend practice everyday of the school week for at least two hours.

The official cheerleading training starts in the summer at a rigorous yet rewarding camp. The East Tennessee State University cheerleading camp allows the squad to work in various areas such as unity, spirit, and trust which are paramount to the success of the team individually and as a whole. "This year we won Most Improved Program at camp which was a high honor. We have worked very hard and our coaching staff has helped us tremendously," states senior Kelly McCay. "As a little girl I ran around the Grove in my cheerleader skirt dreaming of being on the varsity team."

The Varsity squad attends every football and basketball game, rain or shine. The cheerleaders are dedicated to supporting the athletes as well as motivating the crowd. After all, a game is not complete without a round of "Hotty Toddy" led by our ever-dedicated cheerleaders.

The 1997-98 season looks to be one of total domination for the Ole Miss Men's basketball team. Lead by preseason All American Ansu Sesay the Rebels look to improve upon their NCAA tournament performance of last season.

Head Coach Rob Evans has high expectations for this year's team. Judging by early season results the Rebels should perform well.

The Rebels took care of some unfinished business early in the season when they avenged their tournament loss, by beating the Temple Owls.They had previously recorded easy wins over the Slovak National team as well as Spirit Express and Louisiana Tech.

The Temple game showed the incredible progress that the Rebels have made during the off season. Ole Miss returns all five starters from last season, as well as sharpshooting sixth man, Joezon Darby.

Seniors Ansu Sesay, Anthony Boone, and Joezon Darby have been providing valuable leadership for their teammates on and off the court.

Other Rebels looking to make large contributions are juniors Keith Carter, Jason Smith, Michael White, Johnny Rodgers, Chris Oney, and Jon Cantrell. Freshmen Jason Flanigan and Rahim Lockhart also look to gain experience during the course of the season and contribute where they can.

The 1997-98 season is the beginning of a new era for the Ole Miss women's basketball team. Coach Van Chancellor resigned after many winning seasons at Ole Miss. New head coach Ron Aldy is in his first season as the women's head coach. Oxford is familiar setting for Aldy, who graduated from Ole Miss in 1969.

Aldy has experienced plenty of success in the past. His career head coaching record is 79-40.

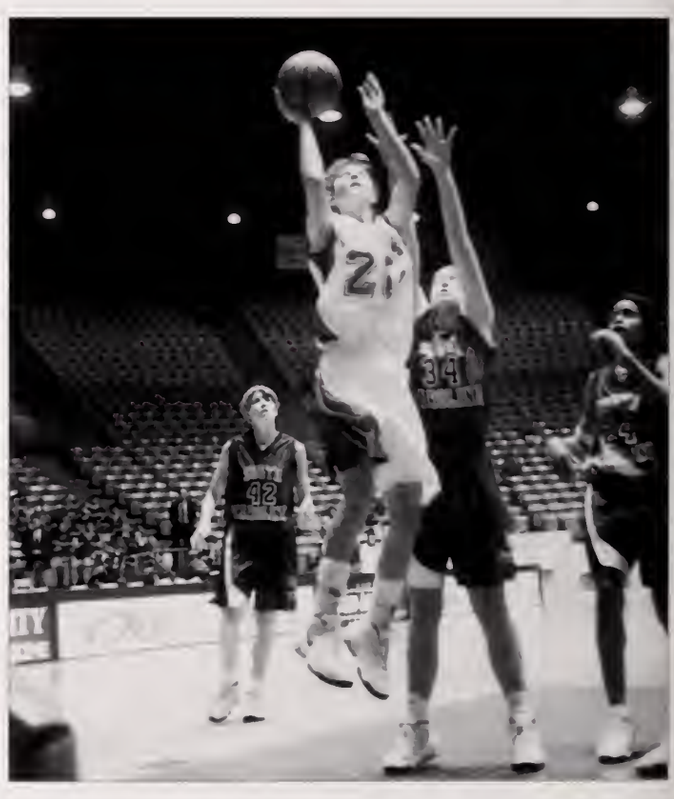

The Lady Rebels lost five seniors to graduation last year. Starters Regan Seybert, Christie Sides, and Niesha Dobbs will be missed.

The Lady Rebels have two returning starters from last year's 16-11 team. Sophomore Tiffany Adkins and junior Tarsha Bentley have proven themselves to be skilled leaders.

There are four other returning players with varsity experience. Senior Kim Rosamond, junior's Jennie Gadd, and Lesli Vollrath and sophomore Sinissia Wysinger should all play big parts in the Lady Rebels season.

The Lady Rebels also expect to get a lot of help from freshman sensation Becky Myatt, who will play a lot of minutes this year. Other Lady Rebels that should help the team are junior Chatica Hathaway and freshmen Heather Bantz, Chandra Dorsey, and Stephanie Murphy.

story by peter watts

The 1997 season was the beginning of a new era for the Ole Miss Rebel baseball team. Longtime coach Don Kessinger retired at the end of the 1996 season after many years of service. He was replaced by Pat Harrison as skipper of the team.

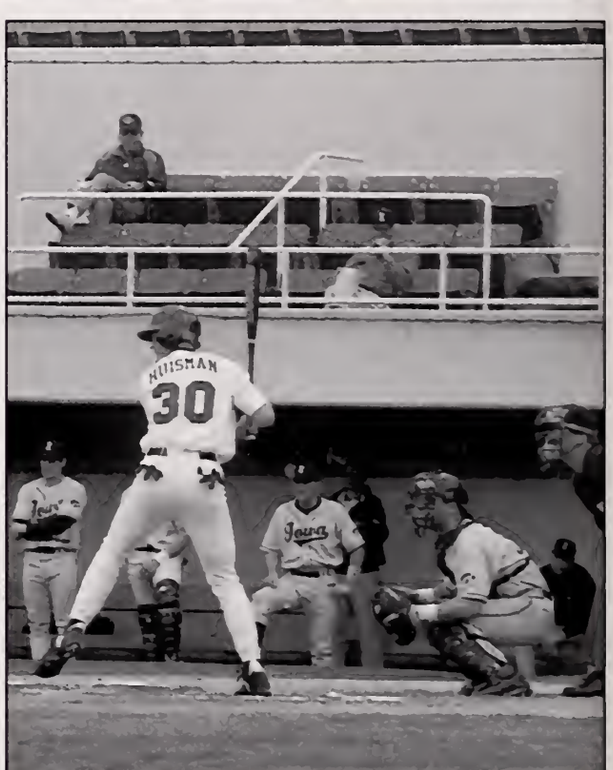

Harrison came to Ole Miss via Pepperdine University. Harrison compiled a 69-38-1 record during his tenure at Pepperdine. In 1996 Head Pepperdine to a 19-6 record in the West Coast Conference which garnered him a second place finish.

Harrison first entered the coaching profession in 1973 when he was hired as an assistant coach at, his alma-mater, the University of Southern California. The Trojans won back to back national championships in 1973 and 1974. Harrison also was an assistant coach with several other sch(ool before being hired for the Pepperdine job.

It did not take Harrison long to find out exactly how competitive the South Eastern Conference was. The very young Rebels were troubled by lack of experience at several positions. Harrison was worried about the lack of experience at the pitching and outfield positions. As the season began to unfold it became apparent that the position of designated hitter also had few experienced players.

Despite their 1997 record of 24-31 things are looking up for the Rebels in 1998. The returning team is much more experienced. The only two seniors that were lost to graduation were ace reliever Matthew Duff and pitcher Michael Rodgers. The Rebels should find plenty of success in 1998, and Harrison should return to the familiar position of having a winning record.

The Ole Miss Rebels fielded their first fastpitch softball team in '97. Joyce Maudie was chosen to be the team's first coach. Maudie had the responsibility of recruiting the girls who would make up the Rebel's first fastpitch team. The historical first game took place in Arlington, Texas at February 14 at the Pepsi Cola Classic.

The team had a disappointing first season with a 22-41 record. They were 7-21 in the SEC.

They opened the season against Missouri on Feb. 15 and lost 3-7.

The Rebels went on to win three out of their first five, including wins over Kentucky and Delta State before hitting a nine game losing skid. Led by junior outfielder Holly Mitchell, the Rebels managed to win some games in their inaugural season. They beat rival Mississippi State three out of the four times they played, and drilled Mississippi Valley 12-0 and 22-1 among other victories.

Mitchell led the team with a .341 batting average, which was also good enough for tenth in the SEC.

Freshman Amanda Fine and sophomore Stephanie Vaglica were both named second team SEC. Fine, a pitcher with a 1.82 ERA, led the team in victories with 17.

Being a young team (half of the team in '97 were freshmen) the lady Rebels have good things to look forward to in the future.

One of the most consistently successful athletic teams over the years at Ole Miss has been the men's tennis team. On the court and in the classroom, the determined and intense members of Coach Billy Chadwick's squad represent Ole Miss courageously, exemplifying the essence of the role of student athletes.

Last year's team continued this tradition as they brought home to Ole Miss some of the most desired collegiate tennis distinctions in the nation.

The squad advanced all the way to the NCAA final four for the second time in three years. While successfully defending the SEC championship title as well as winning the SEC tournament. At the end of the regular season the rebels were ranked fourth nationally. Individually, Sebastien DeChaunac, John Hede, and Johan Landsberg received impressive All-SEC and All-American honors. The team's academic performance was rewarded as the ITA presented them with the Academic All-American Team Award appropriately, since the squad finished with the highest team grade point average in the nation with a combined average of 3.5.

These were only the major highlights of a season characterized by success, determination and sportsmanship, word that have been associated with men's tennis for many years and will for a very long time.

Head Coach Billy Chadwick commented on the greatness of this team. "This team has solidified Ole Miss as one of the top tennis programs in the nation, The combination of their academic success with their success on the court represents the essence of colle-

To say the least, the University of Mississippi's 1996-1997 women's tennis team was a dominate force in the SEC and the nation. They finished out the season ranked 9th nationally and No. 3 in the SEC behind First place Florida and Second place Georgia. Two time All-Americans Agnes Muzamel and Courtenay Chapman proved to be a dynamic duo in doubles completition. "The highlight of my tennis season was being ranked number three in the nation and being a two time All-American because it is so hard to do," said sophomore Courtenay Chapman. The team was young this year and at one point during the season five freshman and three sophomores were starting. "I was more confident starting as a sophomore because there is more pressure to succeed when you are a junior and senior," said Chapman.

The young team had some stiff competition to face. One of the biggest rivalries of the year was the State match in Oxford. An all-time record crowd came to see the Rebels challengé No. 3 ranked Bulldogs. Ole Miss didn't disappoint the fans, defeating the Bulldogs 5-2. There were numerous big wins for the "netters" including their defeat over Vanderbilt. LSU was another big win for the Rebels . Head coach Jerry Montgomery was glowing with pride due to the ladies hard work and success. "I have really enjoyed working with the players this year," he said. Although the team was prosperous in victory, Montgomery thinks the team's best tennis is ahead of them.

Ranked No. 3 in the nation, the Ole Miss Rebels advanced to the NCAA Final Four for the third consecutive year. With several nationally ranked players, the Rebels entered the tournament seeded 2nd.

Sebastian DeChaunac and Landsberg both advanced to the 16th round where DeChaunac defeated Mississippi State's Simon Larose 6-3, 6-2. Nationally ranked No. 2, Sebastian DeChaunac advanced to the NCAA semifinals where he defeated Ryan Wolters, the No.1 player for Stanford, the NCAA Champions. DeChaunac advanced to the NCAA semifinals where he defeated Ryan Wolters, the No.1 player for Stanford, The NCAA Champions. DeChaunac advanced to the Final Four where he lost a close match to Southern Cal's George Baste.

In first round doubles action, Landsberg and Sjoqvist defeated TCU's top seeded doubles team. They advanced to the 16th round where they were defeated by UGA's Baldas and Jordan.

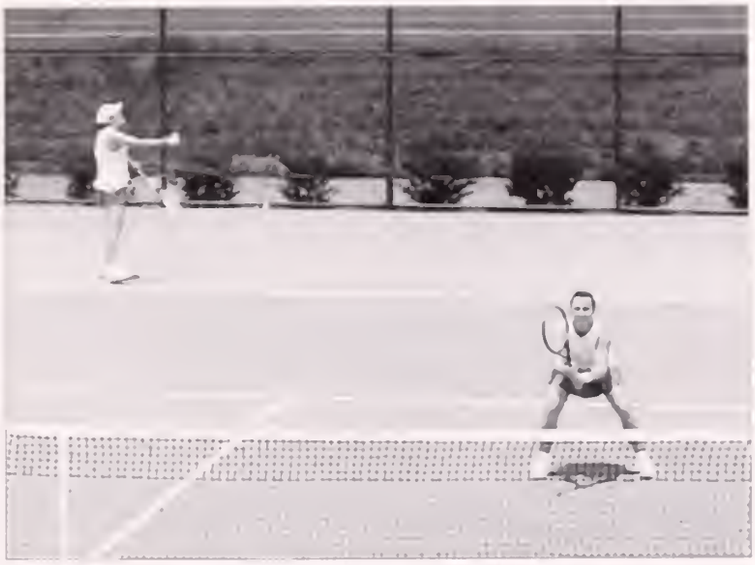

After capturing the NCAA Central Region, the Ole Miss women's tennis team advanced to the 1997 NCAA Tennis Team Championships in Palo Alto, California. The Ole Miss Lady Rebel's appearance in the NCAA tournament marked the end of an incredible season.

Agnes Muzamel finished the tournament ranked No.2 in the nation. Muzamel, seeded 4th, advanced to the quarter finals where she lost a close match to Stanford's Lilia Osterloh. In Women's doubles, Courtenay Chapman and Muzamel lost to Wisconsin in the quarterfinals.

The Ole Miss women's volleyball team had one of their best seasons ever. They finished 1996 with a team record of 19-11 and a Southeastern Conference record of 7-8. Their hard work earned them a third place finish in the SEC Western Division.

1996 was a season of several firsts. The Lady Rebels defeated LSU for the first time in the history of the program. The Lady Rebels finished the regular season with an upset win over Arkansas. It was the first time that the Lady Rebels had ever beaten the Lady Razorbacks.

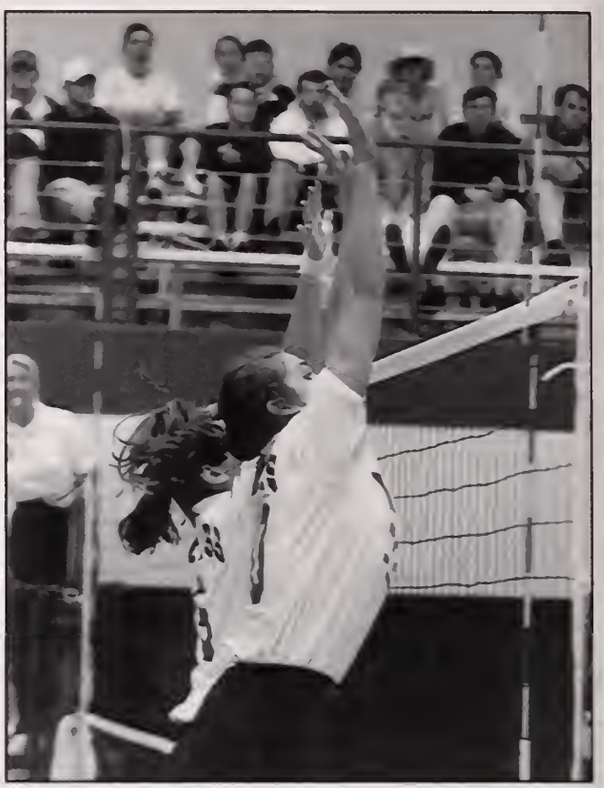

The Arkansas game was also the last game that will be played in the C. M "Tad" Smith Coliseum. The team will be moved into the new Women's Multi-Sport Indoor Complex in time for the 1997 season. The complex features a championship volleyball court.

Five seniors played an integral role in the program. Jennifer Owens, Liz Poerner, Laurie Sellers, Genevieve "V" Shy, and Julia Sitarz saw vast improvement in the program from their freshman record of 3-28. Genieve "V" Shy was honored by the SEC coaches when she was selected to the All-SEC second team for the third time in her career. The 6-1 senior ended the season ranked sixth in hitting percentage and fourth in blocking.

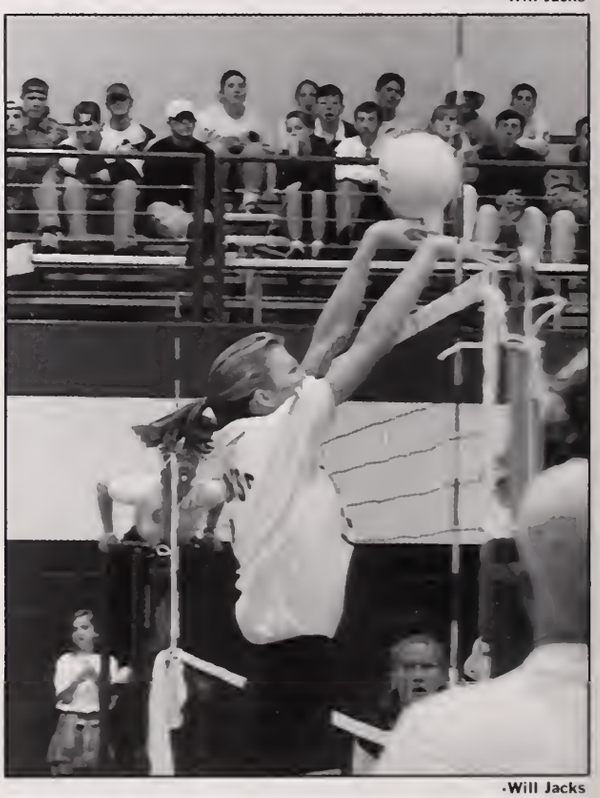

Two other Rebels were honored for their tournament play. Jennifer Owens was selected the Most Valuable Player in the Graphic Systems Classic. Julia Starnes was also named MVP for her performance in the Arkansas State University Invitational.

The Ole Miss men's Cross Country team, lead by Bernard Kuria, experienced their best season since 1992. The Rebels got off to a fast start at the Memphis Plough Park Invitational finishing second first in the ten team field. Bernard Kuria lead the team with a first place finish.

Kuria, a senior, also led the Rebels with a ninth place finish at the SEC Championships. Kuria's finish garnered him SEC honors. It was the third highest finish in Rebel Cross-Country history.

Sophomore Larry Henderson and Senior Calvin Thigpen were redshirted this year. Other top Rebel finishers were Charlie Dawson, 37, Thomas Blackwell, 41. The Rebels went on to compete at the NCAA District III qualifying meet and finished 13th.

The Ole Miss Women's team began the season hoping to contend for the SEC Championship. The women started the season strong finishing fifth in the Memphis Plough Park Invitational. Their goals were shattered when several of their runners were injured at the end of the season. Despite injuries the women's team had an excellent season.

At the Pizza Inn - Indian Cross Country Invitational Leah White, a junior, won her first college race. Susie Haverlah finished third and Elizabeth Brusevold finished fifth.

The teams season ended at the SEC Championships, where they finished twelfth. Leah White led the team with a 54 placing. Other Rebel finishers were Elizabeth Brusevold, 71, Susie Haverlah, 64, Angie Westbrook, 83, Kim Dial, 85.

The Ole Miss Women's track team had another solid season. Founded in 1985, the program is young. This year was another year that featured excellent individual performances. Senior Sherlonda Johnson set a school record in the 800 meter race with a time of 2:06.24. Johnson qualified for the NCAA Outdoor Championships.

Senior Angel Neely also set a new school record in the 10,000 meter run with a time of 36:52.74. Individuals were not the only ones to establish new school records over the course of the season. Tomeka Walker, Gwen Evans, Latoria Jordan, and Tisha Parker set a new school record in the 4X100 meter relay. The team of Walker, Evans, Lashonda Johnson, and Parker set a new record in the 4X200 meter relay. Casey Bobitt, Susie Haverlah, Sherlonda Johnson, and Sabrina Miller set a new school record in the 4X800 meter relay.

The Women's team also experienced success in the field events where Tisha Parker set school records in the long jump and the triple jump.

The Ole Miss Men's Track Team also experienced a lot of individual success. Alonzo Banks defended his SEC Championship in the 800 meters and finished second in this year's race. Sylvestor Houston also finished second in the in the pole vault at the SEC Championships. The 4X100 meter relay team of Derek Jones, Jimmy Love, Enrico Knowles and Alonzo Banks competed at the NCAA Outdoor Track Championships. Ole Miss also had two athletes qualify for the USA Junior Nationals. Larry Henderson competed in the 800 meter and 1500 meter runs. Kyle Wallace gave a great perfomance in the pole vault.

1996 was a great year for the Ole Miss women's soccer team. In only their second season at Ole Miss, the Lady Rebels posted a record of 9-9-1. They showed vast improvement over the record of 6-12 that they posted in 1995. They also recorded their first Southeastern Conference win, in 1996, when they beat Alabama 3-1.

The Lady Rebs showed how much they had improved when they recorded a 13-2 victory over Northwestern State. During that game the team set four SEC records; for most goals 13, most assists 15, most points in a half 24, and most overall points 41.

The team was lead by some very strong individual performances. Sarah Comeaux became the first Lady Rebel to receive post season honors, when she was named to All-Southeastern Conference second team. She finished the season with 26 goals and 2 assists.

Leah Rutledge was also honored when she was named to Soccer Buzz magazine's All-Central Region third team. Rutledge's 25 assists set an SEC conference record for most assists in a single season. Her mark placed her second in the nation behind Notre Dame senior Hanthei.

The team also did very well in the classroom. Six Lady Rebels received SEC Academic Honor Roll distinctions. April Coss, Elizabeth Lee, Leah Rutledge, Jennie Schurr, Holly Strachan, and Tammy Zegledi all represented the school well through their excellent academic performance.

The Ole Miss rifle team is taking aim on their second season of competition. In their inaugural campaign the Rebels posted a 2-3 match record and an eighth-place showing at the NCAA Collegiate Sectional. The Rebels are looking forward for improvement and making a steady climb up the collegiate ladder.

Kimberly Hickey led the team last year with an average of 340 and had the best single match with a 365 in the Murray State- Withrow Invitational. Hickey is a solid and consistent shooter. This years team captain Melissa Putnam was second with an 338 average. Both are returning this year and will provide a big help to the team's effort.

Other returning shooters are Amy Pyron and Jessica Crocket they had averages of 315 and 317 respectively. Both Crocket and Pyron are sophomores and have already started to make big contributions to the program. The lone freshman Spring Bishop is expected to have a huge impact on the Rebel squad. In a fall match she shot a career best 370.

"I thought for a first-year program, we had a successful year," Coach Adcock-Boothe said. Other programs had better watch out as the Ole Miss rifle team is here to stay.

The Ole Miss Men's Golf team experienced a rebuilding year during the 1996-97 season. The team sorely missed graduates Brian Rowell and Thad Hudgens. Coach Woody Cowart entered his fourth season as the men's golf coach and has had a lot of luck signing solid recruits.

The Rebels linksters were lead by junior Lane Pippen a transfer from South Alabama. Pippen did an outstanding job in both the fall and spring seasons. His best showing of the year was his second place finish at the Kiawah Invitational. He had three excellent rounds shooting 67-72-69. Pippen also had an excellent showing at the Fall Beach Classic where he finished seventh.

The Ole Miss men's team also got some excellent performances from senior Jon Howard who finished tenth at the Georgia Invitational. Senior Matt Armstrong and sophomore Haymes Snedeker also contributed valuable performances to the team.

The Rebels look to have excellent seasons in 1997-98. They have a lot of talent returning and have signed three great prospects. All-American transfer Jonathan Bartlett and High School All-American Allen Chaney should make an instant impact on the team. Transfer Brendan Fisher should also help the linksters.

The Ole MIss women's golf team is traditionally one of the schools strongest teams. Founded in 1981 the women's team has won two SEC women's titles produced three individual NCAA Champions. The Lady Rebels have finished in the top five five times and have posted seven top ten finishes.

Their season came to a dramatic end at the SEC Championships held on the Grand National Golf Course, in Opelika Alabama. After shooting first and second day scores of 328-320, the Rebels came back with a final round of 304. Their comeback secured them a tenth place finish in the SEC tournament.

The Rebels were lead by Joanne Caldwell who shot an overall score of 230, to finish seventeenth in the tournament Caldwell shot a 74, her lowest round of the year on the final eighteen holes. During her career at Ole Miss, Caldwell scored seven top ten finishes and fourteen top twenty finishes. She is also a member of the SEC Honor Roll. Caldwell was not the only member of the team to earn honors at the SEC Championships.

Freshman Robyn Rinaldo and sophomore Megan Breen earned All-SEC honorable mention for finishing in the top twenty-four in stroke average. The Rebel are looking to have a strong season in 1998. Rinaldo, Breen and senior Lauren Mellen are expected to lead the team.

Rob Evans named SEC Coach of the Year

story by lindsay wilson

-Trent Thompson

Rob Evans is SEC Coach of the Year, headlines screamed. After being honored with this award, articles, features, and interviews flooded the media on his outstanding performance. Evans has always been consistent with his technique in coaching.

Ansu Sesay, the basketball team's forward, says "Coach Evans started the program from scratch and he has recruited players that want to work hard." The award Evans received did not only honor his work with the team last season, but also honored the years which led up to their recent success.

"In high school , I always wanted to be an English major," says Evans . "But, as soon as I got in college, I saw the relationship coaches had with their players; and , so many players weren't being helped and guided . I felt a need to be a part of them to guide young guys."

Along with receiving SEC Coach of the Year, Evans gained yet another title — the Hoop Insiders National Coach of the Year. " I am extremely elated with both, especially the SEC Coach of the Year because of the people (all SEC coaches) who vote on that," says Evans.

Point guard, Michael White says, "his greatest asset is unknown to the public. He teaches life lessons and acts as a father figure to all of us."

Evans, who has coached for 30 years, looks forward to yet another promising year. "The continued improvement in individual persons and the challenges of the ball game motivate my life," says Evans

Rebel Tennis has highest GPA in country

- Sports Info

story by andrew wood

The Ole Miss tennis team has another feather to put in their hat. Not only do they get the job done on the court but they also perform well in the classroom.

The rebel tennis team beat out other schools such as Stanford and Georgia to win this honor. This award is evidence to the hard work and time players contribute to their studies.

The Ole Miss tennis team has over a 3.5 gpa. figure per player, a truly respectable statistic in both the academic and athletic worlds.

This award is obviously a testament that not only are the rebels athletes but they are also scholars. Ole Miss tennis -- not only winners on the court, but off the court as well.

Nate Wayne displays Chuckie Mullins Courage

Chucky Mullins continues to live in the hearts of Rebel fans through the wearing of his number 38 jersey by a defensive player who best exhibits his winning spirt. # Tuberville named SEC Coach of the Year

story by doug comfort

After leading the Rebels to a regular season record of 7-4 overall, 4-4 in the SEC, Tuberville was voted as the Associated Press SEC Coach of the Year. The honor was a reward for achieving what many sportswriters viewed as impossible accomplishing a winning season. Many of the same writers just three months earlier had picked Ole Miss to finish last in the SEC West with no more than three or four victories.

"This is a credit to our football players, especially the seniors, as well as the coaching staff," Tuberville said. "They did an excellent job of overcoming some difficult circumstances and were able to achieve our goal of a winning season and attaining a bowl bid."

Coach Tubervilleís success brought rumors of other schools courting his services for the second consecutive year. Unlike last year, though, a serious threat to Tuberville's status as a Rebel presented itself when Frank Broyles, athletic director at the University of Arkansas, flew his selection committee to New York to meet with Tuberville at the College Football Hall of Fame Induction Ceremony in early December.

Arkansas fans and the national media proclaimed Tuberville the man who would save the Hogs.

-Anna Smi

But, in the early morning hours of December 10, our coach proved the national media wrong again by professing his love for Ole Miss and his intentions of remaining the Rebel head man for years to come.

"We have a big family here with our fans, coaches, and players. That's what makes it so tough to leave, Tuberville said. I want to thank the fans for letting me know what they think of me. You want to be where you are wanted and deep down, I know Ole Miss is the place for me."

Rebels in top 25 in basketball and football

It all began in the fall of 1996 with a promise from men's basketball coach Rob Evans, saying that if the Rebel fans supported the team throughout the year, the Rebels would win the SEC Western Division Championship. Although most pundits laughed his comments off, the Rebels saw the promise through with a late February win over hated arch-rival LSU.

The success of the basketball team spilt over into the fall with the Ole Miss football team. After defeating 8th-ranked LSU on the road, Ole Miss earned its first national ranking in football since 1992. The Rebels dropped out of the polls the following week, but returned in the final poll at the #22 spot, following a victory over Marshall in the Motor City Bowl.

The men's basketball team opened the 1997-98 season as a nationally ranked team and stood at 11-1 after 12 games, their best start since 1936-37. The Rebels' stellar play allowed Ole Miss to climb as high as #14 in the national polls.

The football ranking combined with a basketball ranking as high as 14th in the nation marked the first time in Ole Miss sports history that the Rebels were ranked in both sports. As a matter of fact, by combining the two sports rankings for the fall of 1997, Ole Miss would rank in the top ten athletic programs in the nation with such schools as UCLA, Michigan, North Carolina, Syracuse, and Florida State.

Organizations

150th ANNIVERSARY

The history of organizations at Ole Miss extends back to the University's founding in 1848. We, the students, have an idea of where the University has come from and where it is going because of the campus organizations. Many groups, such as the Blackstone Literary Society and the Loafers Club, have lamentably been terminated, and they are but distant memories to few, non-existent to most everyone associated with the university. Student organizations ebb and flow with the tides of time, but one thing remains constant: students coming together for common beliefs and causes.

Due to the students, the University takes on a definition and becomes an entity unto itself, and it is through the clubs that one can define and categorize the student body.

With over 10,000 students enrolled, there is a myriad of personalities, ideals and backgrounds at Ole Miss. Since there are over 200 organizations on campus, anyone can become involved --- it is a matter of discovering a group with similar likes and dislikes along with the willingness to sacrifice some time and energy.

Greeks 150th ANNIVERSARY

The Greek system has been a part of the University of Mississippi since the doors of the Lyceum first opened to students in 1848. Just as its six white columns have stood strong and weathered many storms, so has the Greek system adapted to the changes that inevitably come over the course of 150 years.

This year Greeks were given yet another opportunity to show their survival skills as the Ole Miss administration decided to push Rush back to October Classes, meetings and midterm exams filled the days of the Greeks during the week of Rush while their nights were occupied by Rush parties. Such an overwhelming juggling act gave Greeks an opportunity to demonstrate their strength and elasticity.

The Panhellenic Council serves as the governing body of Ole Miss sororities. Comprised of eight executive officers, all sorority presidents, and two representatives from each sorority, the council is a representative group that makes decisions concerning the women's Greek organizations. The council works with the Inter Fraternal Council(IFC), Ole Miss administration, and the Dean of Students office to ensure that the Greek community contributes positively to the University and Oxford communities.

Inter Fraternal Council

President: Robert Perry

Vice President of NPHC: Jimmy Love

Vice President of Judicial/ Education: John Marc Sharpe

Vice President of Rush: Brian McLaurin

The Inter Franternal Council (IFC) serves many different roles at the University of Mississippi. IFC conducts the affairs of the Ole Miss Greek system, organizing and managing Rush, handling disciplinary matters and violations of the constitution of IFC, which is headed by the Vice President of Judicial. There are five executive positions on the council, which is made up of two representatives from each fraternity on campus.

The 1998 Ole Miss was published by Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, Texas and produced by a staff of students at The University of Mississippi with no affiliation with the school's Department of Journalism.

Distributed in the spring semester to full-time students who have paid an activity fee allotment of $9.10 per semester.

Produced on Power Macintosh computers using QuarkXpress and Adobe Photoshop software.

Typefaces used most commonly were Jack Roman, Palatino, and Times.

Photographs in the classes section were taken by Candid Campus of Oxford. All other photos were taken by students in the Student Media Department of were used by the courtesy of the SID and various other contributers.

The Ole Miss is a student-run publication of The University of Mississippi. No portion of this book may be reproduced without the written consent of the editor-in-chief or yearbook adviser.

All viewpoints represented in this book are solely those of the yearbook staff, and do not necessarily reflect those of The University of Mississippi.

The University of Mississippi

PRO SCIENTIA ET SAPIENTIA

from the editor

Completing the final pages of this edition has left me thinking about what the past two years would have been like without the Ole Miss. While I've sometimes eagerly anticipated the day when the final copy would be shipped, I can't help feeling a little nostalgic about the end of my final term as editor.

Lately I have come to understand that dazed all-nighters, technical difficulties, employee dilemmas, and hectic afternoons in the office taught me more than I learned in all my classes combined. Without these setbacks and challenges, I never would have been forced to learn some essential lessons.

One of the first things I learned was that I could not do anything alone. Had the yearbook depended solely upon me for its completion, you would not be holding this copy today.

All my thanks and praise belong to God who made everything that has been accomplished possible and gave me the opportunity to serve as editor. He not only gave me the stamina and strength to fill my role, but peace and loved ones to share both my hard and happy days.

My mother was faithful to bear many burdens with me and point me in the right direction on the days when I was tired and could not make it by myself. Thank you for being my mentor, my comforter, and my most trusted friend. I hope someday I can be for you the help you have been for me.

Daddy, you do know best. Finally I realize how you have always tried to protect and lead me. Remember how you wanted to convince me of the virtues of print media from the time I learned to read? You started it all, and I am grateful.

Justin, who would have thought that all the years of tattletailing and body-slamming would finally leave us as friends? I will admit that it used to really get under my skin that you were such a reasonable and good-natured kid in contrast to me. But now those same traits excite me when I see the choices you are making and the man you are becoming. You will always remain my favorite baby brother.

My grandparents and extended family have supported and cheered me on not only during my time as editor, but throughout my life. Thank you for memories of mud pies, pony rides, fishing excursions, Sunday dinners, long walks and explorations in Potts Camp and Martintown. They will never leave my heart, and neither will you.

Tiffany, Susan, and Jane, thanks for being the best roommates and friends I could ever ask for. You provided the comic relief and constant companionship that made even the hardest days easier.

Traci, thanks for putting up with my disciplinary weaknesses and teaching me about diligence and responsibility. You have been a dear friend and a joy to work with throughout the past three years.

To the staff of the yearbook, thanks for your hard work, sacrifice and dedication. Especially to the faithful few who remained loyal to the end, the credit for this book belongs all to you.

Thank you, Summer, for being my right hand all year. You are going to produce the most beautiful book Ole Miss has ever seen, I'm sure. Good luck!

Student media staff and journalism faculty, your encouragement and understanding were vital in these past two years. Thank you for allowing me to learn in your classrooms as well as through practical experience on the yearbook.

To all the friendly faces around Farley Hall, (especially Bernadette and Mel) thanks for the encouragement and interest you have shown me and the rest of the staff.

Thanks to Ben, Melody, Toni, and everyone at TPC for your help and patience.

Finally, I want to express my deep gratitude to the entire Ole Miss family. Your assistance, cooperation and good faith have not gone unappreciated. I hope that despite its many mistakes and shortcomings this book can remind you of what Ole Miss is, has been, and will always be...our home.

Amy
